Japanese Fleet Flees Philippines After 29 More Vessels Go Down

"YOU GOT TO QUIT KICKING MY DOG AROUND!" With an offended flick of the tongue, President Roosevelt's Fala gives a hearty razzberry to one Thomas E. Dewey, whose disparaging remarks about the sad-eyed Scottie have fixed it so the mustachioed Republican is not even welcome in the doghouse—and that's getting pretty low. Presidential Aspirant Dewey got into Fala's bad graces, Mr. Roosevelt revealed in his first campaign speech Saturday night, by including the poor pooch in the Republicans' broadsides against the administration. The President said he didn't mind for himself, but that Fala's delicate sensibilities had been sorely wounded.

Nip Airforce In Islands Is 'Kayoed'

200 Enemy Aircraft Wrecked; 20 Vessels Damaged at Manila

By The Associated Press.

Carrier planes of the Halsey-Mitscher naval team have forced the Japanese fleet to withdraw from the Philippines and have "broken" their air force in the islands, Adm. Nimitz said yesterday in announcing the second consecutive devastating raid on the Manila area September 21 (U. S. time).

Attacking again in force, the American fliers sank 29 more ships in the Manila bay area, damaged 20, sank or damaged 16 small craft and destroyed or damaged 200 airplanes.

Japanese broadcasts reported without American confirmation that a third raid on the Manila area was staged Friday, U. S. time, and a fourth consecutive assault hit southern Luzon and the central Philippines Saturday.

Other American warships frustrated a Japanese attempt to reinforce their beleagured forces on Peleliu in the Palau islands Saturday, destroying a convoy of 13 barges and one sampan carrying carrying men and equipment, a Navy press release announced.

86 SHIPS "OUT"

The total Japanese losses for the September 20-21 strikes were: 86 ships put out of action, 17 smaller craft, 2 drydocks and 405 planes.

Both assaults were directed at the Manila bay area, Cavite naval base—nine miles across the bay from Manila—Nichols airfield, near the city, and Clark airfield, about 60 miles northward.

The box score of the September 20-21 strikes as listed by Nimitz is as follows:

Ships sunk, 40; small craft sunk, 6; ships probably sunk, 11; ships damaged, 35; small craft damaged, 11; floating drydocks damaged, 2; aircraft destroyed in combat, 169; aircraft destroyed on the ground, 188; planes damaged on the ground, 45; planes damaged by ships' gunfire, 3.

OUR LOSSES LIGHT

"Our losses in this daring and highly successful strike were 11 planes in combat, 10 pilots and 5 air troopmen. There was no loss or damage to any of our surface ships," Nimitz said.

The September 20 raid was aimed at Cavite navy yard, Clark and Nichols airfields and the Manila harbor area.

The second strike, September 21, apparently was a big surprise to the Japanese. They put fewer planes in the air to intercept the hundreds of American carrier planes.

Continuation of the carrier smashes were reported by a Domei broadcast, which said 200 American planes struck at Legaspi, strategic port 200 miles southeast of Manila, and at Cebu, important metropolitan center.

New aerial strikes and the war declaration by the puppet government were accompanied by an appeal from Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, former Japanese commander in the islands, to "18,000,000 Filipinos to rise as one to crush American aggressors trying to infringe upon their territorial integrity and independence." Homma's plea, picked up by the Associated Press, was delivered during a press interview.

Japanese interception was negligible.

P-T boats tightened their blockade of bypassed Japanese forces on Halmahera island. The auda-

INVASION OF ANGAUR—Under the protecting guns of American warships, troops of the 81st Infantry Division swarm onto the northern beaches of Angaur island, in the Palau group. Several types of modern landing craft may be seen. Smoke rising from the island comes from the intense fires started by naval and aerial bombardments. Four days after this remarkable picture was made, Angaur was announced "secure" and these troops turned to mopping up isolated remnants of what had been a powerful Jap force. Peleliu, another island in the Palaus, is now three-fourths occupied by Americans. The Japs have also been sent reeling by new blows in the Philippines.

FDR's Speech Heralds Get-Out-the-Vote Drive

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(UP)—An intensified drive to get out the vote November 7 is anticipated by political observers in the wake of President Roosevelt's political speech Saturday night.

Mr. Roosevelt refocused attention on two sore spots in both Democratic and Republican ranks:

1. Fear that public apathy will keep millions of voters away from the polls.

2. The state's rights soldier vote law which he used as a vehicle for charges that "some political candidates may think they have a chance if only the total (armed services vote) is small enough."

There was scant reaction here to his address, due to the congressional election recess, but few persons doubted that Mr. Roosevelt had set the stage for an epochal pre-election battle.

His remarks served to recall that he signed the soldier vote law reluctantly because, he said, it would make it too difficult for thousands of soldiers and sailors to vote. Last night he went further. Without naming names but obviously referring to the Republicans, he said:

"They are, of course, perfectly willing to let you vote—unless you happen to be a soldier or sailor overseas, or a merchant seaman carrying the munitions of war. In that case they have made it pretty hard for you to vote for there are some political candidates who think they may have a chance if only the total vote is small enough.

"And while I am on the subject of voting let me urge every American citizen—man and woman—to use your sacred privilege of voting, no matter which candidate you expect to support. Our millions of soldiers and sailors and merchant seamen have been handicapped or prevented from voting by those politicians and candidates who think they stand to lose by such votes."

Leaders of both parties were disappointed by well-below average balloting in the spring and summer primaries and have set up organizations reaching from lo-

Dr. Hoke Dies; Co-Founder of Scottish Rite

First Medical Director For Warm Springs Succumbs in Carolina

Dr. Michael Hoke, one of the founders of the Atlanta Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, first surgeon at Warm Springs Foundation and chairman emeritus of the advisory board of orthopaedic surgeons of the 15 Shrine hospitals, died early yesterday at his home in Beaufort, South Carolina.

Born in Lincolnton, N. C., June 28, 1874, he was the son of the late Robert Frederick and Lydia Van Wyck Hoke. He was graduated from the University of North Carolina School of Engineering and took his medical training at the University of Virginia, where he obtained his M. D. degree in 1895. In 1931 he was awarded the L. L. D. degree from University of North Carolina.

Big Parade Tonight Will Open Fund Drive

By PAUL WARWICK.

To the fanfare of blaring bands and the measured tread of marching feet, Greater Atlanta's 1944 version of the United Community and War Fund gets its official send-off tonight with a dramatic parade through downtown Atlanta's streets.

Mike Benton, virtuoso of cavalcades, and his colleagues have gathered together an impressive procession to celebrate the opening of this drive for $1,375,700 to provide essential support for 31 welfare and character-building agencies which are gathered in the Atlanta Community Fund and the 22 morale-sustaining and relief organizations which comprise the National War Fund.

The parade will move southward up Peachtree from Baker, down through Five Points and on down Whitehall at 8 p. m. promptly. Units in the march—and there are many—will form at the streets surrounding the intersection of Peachtree and Baker at 7:30 p. m., to be ready for the grand marshal's starting signal.

On top of the reviewing stand which Al Belle Isle has constructed at the corner of Peachtree and Pryor streets will be various leaders of the drive, including Hal Dumas, Charles Jagels and Harry Sommers, the triumvirate of Atlanta business men who are acting as cochairmen in leadership of the effort.

Army, Navy and Marines—including their feminine counterparts—will be in the march, adding to the highly martial atmosphere which the parade will possess. Colorful floats have also been prepared by various organizations, one in particular, created by the ingenuity of the equipment pool of the U. S. Army Engineers, promising to surpass in beauty the previous efforts of this enterprising group.

The Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross will also be impressively represented—although the Red Cross is not one of the 53 agencies included in this campaign, which opens today and runs through October 10. Yaarab Temple of the Shrine will also be out in force, providing the enthusiasm and gaiety which is always assured by its participation. The Georgia State Guard, the

Gothic Line's East Half Is Caved In by Allies

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mighty blows of the U. S. Fifth and British Eighth armies caved in the entire eastern half of the 115-mile Gothic line and today the Germans were in disorganized retreat from the rubble of their fortifications before American forces surging to within 15 miles of Bologna.

Doughboy assault forces were sweeping down some of Italy's highest peaks to within sight of the broad valley of the Po after a bitter 10-day battle which, an official account said, "left the Gothic defense zone a shattered mass of rubble and battered fortifications still littered with the bodies of the slain defenders."

Futa pass, 28 miles south of Bologna, key to the center of the Gothic line and one of the toughest of German defenses, fell with bewildering swiftness. Doughboys scaling heights on the east and west of the pass had made untenable the positions of Germans trying to hold the gap.

Concerted assaults by the two Allied armies, an Allied communique proclaimed, "have forced the enemy to abandon the whole of the prepared positions of his Gothic line except for the sector west of Futa pass."

The American spearhead, eight miles closer to the important com-

500,000 Nazis Taken Captive Since D-Day

First Army Leads With 182,492 Bag; Figures Still Coming In LONDON, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Since D-Day the Allied armies have taken well over half a million prisoners in France, Belgium and Holland, a recapitulation showed today—and they're still coming in.

Keeping count of prisoners has been one of the major statistical jobs of this campaign. In addition to the American, British and Canadian armies, French, Polish and Belgian resistance forces have contributed their share.

The capture of the great ports of Boulogne and Brest the latter part of last week swelled the total by some 43,000, while the largest haul of the campaign consisted of between 45,000 and 46,000, taken in the Falaise pocket between August 12 and August 23.

Of the Allied armies involved in the fighting, the American First Army has the biggest bag of prisoners, according to available figures. It has captured a

By ROBERT VERMILLION.

EPINAL, France, Sept. 24.—(UP)—The razor-sharp shell fragment ripped off the young American soldier's left arm at the shoulder and he just sat down and looked in surprise at us.

He was fresh from the United States—a replacement for an American infantry outfit slugging it out with the Germans on the banks of the Moselle river—and he had not yet fired his machinegun.

We put a compress on his shoulder and managed to stop the flow of blood. The boy did not faint.

He sat quiet for a few minutes and then walked over to where the severed arm was lying and took off the wrist watch and tried to remove the wedding ring.

Later he walked three miles to an evacuation station and was transferred to a base hospital.

Lt. John Darcy, New York city, explained the replacements were of high caliber.

"Just like the youngster," he said. "They've been well-trained and they know how to take it."

Poles Ease Arnhem Pocket; Air Troops Win Reich Hold

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The encircled British airborne force west of Arnhem have received "limited assistance" from Allied troops battering their way to the rescue and their position is "definitely brighter," Allied headquarters reported last night, confirming front-line dispatches from Holland. Meanwhile, front-line dispatches disclosed U. S. paratroops are fighting in Germany to the southeast.

The aid to the beleaguered force came when a thin corridor was established from Nijmegen to the south bank of the Neder Rhine (the Lek) and some Polish troops crossed the river Saturday night in rubber assault boats to contact the trapped British.

British tanks and infantry have smashed a German roadblock north of Eindhoven to reopen supply lines, and American forces holding the Nijmegen area have been reinforced by the new glider troops which arrived Saturday.

Headquarters said the morale of the pocketed British force was high.

FIGHT IN REICH

"Americans were engaged in stiff fighting on German soil at one point" somewhere east of Nijmegen, a delayed censored dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Robert C. Wilson, at Nijmegen declared. A radio correspondent declared "American paratroopers have been fighting in Germany for a week southeast of Nijmegen" and "we hold at least a square mile of Nazi territory."

The British Second Army under Lt. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey is fanning out from Eindhoven and driving southeast toward Maeseyck, a town only seven miles from the northernmost units of the U. S. First Army commanded by Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, a native of Perry, Ga.

Meanwhile, indications that the Germans were withdrawing along the Antwerp-Turnhout canal were exploited by Canadian forces, which moved up eight miles to the northeast and established a bridgehead over the canal seven

Reds Smash Across Czech Boundary

Hungarian Frontier Crossed; Naval Forces Capture Baltic Port

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(Monday) (AP)—The Red army smashed 25 miles inside Czechoslovakia and also crossed the prewar Hungarian frontier yesterday in a big pincers movement aimed at knocking Hungary out of the war, while in the north Soviet naval forces captured the Baltic seaport of Paldiski on the Estonian west coast. This was the first time in three years the Russians had struck in the Baltic.

A Moscow broadcast said that Russian troops crossing from southern Poland through Lupkow pass into Czechoslovakia had captured the town of Humenne, 25 miles inside the frontier and the same distance from the northern Hungarian frontier.

Simultaneously, Russian and Romanian troops crossed the southeastern Hungarian frontier, a Bucharest communique disclosed. These units were believed to be less than 35 miles from Szeged, Hungary's second city.

The Russian drive into Slovakia routed the 228th and 101st German Infantry Divisions after a fierce fight, said the Moscow broadcast. The Red army units were only 30 miles northeast of Kassa (Kosice), East Slovakian city annexed by Hungary.

The double push threatened to trap all German and Hungarian troops strung out in eastern Slovakia and northern Transylvania. The two arms of the pincers were only about 150 miles apart, and the troops that invaded weakening Hungary were on flat terrain suitable for swift tank warfare.

On the Baltic front other Soviet

INSIDE CONQUERED GERMANY, Sept. 22.—(Delayed)—Although there is apparently no militant anti-Nazi feeling among the 50,000 German farmers and small-town folk we now govern, there is a very militant war-weariness and it was this more than anything else that caused the people to break free from Nazi control.

The Nazis issued a desperate appeal for every German to rise up and defend his own home—"make every village a Stalingrad, every house a pillbox, every field scorched earth." No villages have become Stalingrads yet and no fields have become scorched earth. Some houses are pillboxes, but they were made so by German soldiers and not by civilians.

The Nazis ordered all able males from 15 to 60 to take up arms and the rest to be evacuated, and how the people here reacted to this order is interesting for the light it throws upon just how much control the Nazis still retain over the German people. In every town we have come to thus far, about half the population—sometimes a little more and almost never less—has defied both the resistance and the evacuation orders and has remained quietly at home.

Among the farmers, almost none obeyed either order, except the youths who were forcibly mobilized. But among both the town folk and farmers it is true that an overwhelming majority of the youths did not resist mobilization. At least they now are mobilized and there are no reliable reports that any anti-Nazi resistance was apparent among them; all evidence leading instead to the conclusion that they are rallying very violently around the Nazi cause.

The half of any town population that did decide to go along to the last ditch with the Nazis consists generally of youths, all Nazi party leaders, most Nazi party members and practically everybody with any kind of job they may have owed to the Nazis. For instance, in all the German towns we have taken to date we have found only one Nazi party leader—a 70-year-old man who was a "block warden," which is the lowest rank in the Nazi party duties, consisting merely of collecting dues from party members. None of any higher rank has yet deserted the party.

When we come into a town we find the policemen and firemen have all gone away with the Nazis, and most of the post office,

Dewey Vows To Intensify Attack on FDR

Governor To Begin 'Record Examining' In Speech Tonight

By The Associated Press.

Gov. Dewey, accepting the political gage thrown out Saturday night by President Roosevelt, said yesterday he felt free now to examine the chief executive's record "with unvarnished candor" because the President, he said, "has dropped the mask of a 'nonpolitical' campaign."

En route back east, with a speaking stop at Oklahoma City scheduled for Monday night, Dewey issued a statement to newsmen on his train in which he said:

"Since the man who wants to be President for 16 years has dropped the mask of a 'nonpolitical' campaign and is campaigning on the remote past, I shall feel free to examine his record with unvarnished candor in the future."

Meanwhile Democratic National Committee officials said public reaction indicated Mr. Roosevelt's speech was "the most masterful political speech" he had ever delivered.

Continuing the verbal blasting against Dewey, Interior Sec. Ickes put the label "New Deal convert" on Dewey in an address to an American-Slav Congress rally in Pittsburgh.

Declaring Dewey had undergone a political metamorphosis since he was nominated at Chicago, Ickes declared.

"From some editorial comments that I have seen in Republican papers, the man who went bravely forth to slay the New Deal dragon, and is now on his way home tickling it under the chin with a feather duster, is not going to be welcomed with open arms."

In the meantime, Dewey's running mate, Gov. Bricker, of Ohio, wound up a series of New England talks and headed back for Ohio.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, in a New York City broadcast, declared that on President Roosevelt's record "of handling prewar issues, there is no reason to accept the indispensability of the Roosevelt administration for handling the peace."

But he added that Dewey "apparently still favors the system which led to the great depression and wants nothing better than a slightly more sophisticated, and I hope, more honest version of Harding's return to normalcy."

This year, in contrast to four years ago, more than 11,000,000 men and women are in the armed forces or overseas on civilian duty connected with the war. The aggregate size of their vote, once it is tabulated, is so conjectural that both parties are exerting every effort to get out the home vote, and each is concentrating on the feminine vote which will be a major factor, due to the absence of millions of males overseas.

total of 182,493 between June 6 and September 22.

The American Ninth Army, whose presence in France was announced a few days ago, captured 60,000 prisoners up to September 22, while the Third Army figure—available up to September 6—is listed at 76,000. The armies in southern France, now described as the Sixth Army group sector, took 72,000 prisoners by September 13.

Totals up to September 16 included 73,297 for the British Second Army and 52,971 for the Canadian First Army.

A box score follows:

June 10 (date of capture of Balleroy and Carentan)—Total since D-Day reached 10,000.

June 18 (when U. S. forces cut across the Cherbourg peninsula)—Total since D-Day rose to 15,000.

June 27 (capture of Cherbourg)—20,000 in four days.

July 2 (when last Nazi resistance in Cherbourg peninsula ceased)—Total since D-Day, 40,000.

July 11—Total prisoners since D-Day, 54,000.

July 30 (end of four-day offensive in Periers-St. Lo area)—8,200 more captives seized.

August 4 (date American armor and British entered Villers Bocage)—Total since D-Day reached 100,000.

"SEVERAL HUNDRED"

August 11—FFI units in Brittany peninsula captured "several hundred" prisoners.

August 12-13—British and Canadian linked up between Orne and Laize river, and U. S. troops opened their northward drive to Argentan, creating the Falaise pocket. On August 23, the pocket was eliminated with a total of 42,000 to 45,000 prisoners.

August 23 (when Third Army reached the Seine)—Total Third Army prisoners in 23 days were announced as 50,000, some of which were included in the Falaise gap figure.

August 25—Eisenhower reported that since D-Day, the prisoner total was over 200,000, with 135,000 since July 25.

August 25—Date De Gaulle entered Paris, it was announced 10,000 had been taken in fighting for that city.

September 4—British captured Antwerp and in the days following overran Belgium to the Dutch border. On September 10, the British Second Army announced 12,130 prisoners had been taken.

September 13—Armies in southern France announced a combined prisoner total of 72,000—41,500 by the French and 30,500 by the Americans.

September 13—Prisoner total for the U. S. First, Third and Seventh armies soared to 320,000.

September 12—British Second Army prisoners since September 1 reached 39,000.

September 22—(airborne operation in Holland)—Prisoner figure from Escaut area announced as 1,800.

September 21—Mass surrender of 19,312 Germans south of the Loire.

Prisoner totals from the individual German coastal garrisons included 7,300 at Boulogne September 22; 36,389 at Brest September 23, and 11,309 at Le Havre, September 16.

Pegler Sneezes As Dewey Sniffs Snuff, Says Ickes

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Sec. Ickes said today that since Gov. Dewey has been generous in giving President Roosevelt advice about his cabinet, he shouldn't mind a few suggestions from the Democrats.

Ickes nominated Westbrook Pegler as "an original member of the Newspaper Guild of the CIO, a champion of labor, a journalistic knight," for secretary of labor in Dewey's cabinet.

"Mr. Pegler," Ickes told an American-Slav Congress audience, "has the additional qualifications . . . that he has already learned to sneeze whenever Mr. Dewey takes snuff."

Ickes did not make any other "nominations" for Dewey's cabinet.

Welles Honored

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, has been selected by Freedom House to receive its 1944 Freedom award, the organization announced today. Taking Nijmegen Bridge An 'Impossible' Feat

By ROBERT WILSON.

WITH U. S. AIRBORNE TROOPS IN HOLLAND, Sept. 22 (Delayed).—(AP)—For raw courage, the battle for Nijmegen bridge fought by American airborne troops ranks with the Marine capture of Tarawa.

It was a masterpiece of military improvisation—"impossible according to textbooks"—achieved only "through the quality of our troops," declared the general commanding the division that did it.

The audacious operation of crossing the 300-yard wide Rhine in daylight under enemy fire, in which British troops and the Dutch underground played important roles, was conceived and finished in less than 24 hours.

The Germans held both ends of the bridge, a life line to the airborne forces isolated at Arnhem eight miles north. It was decided that a frontal assault was suicidal.

Instead the commanders decided to cut a half mile northwest of the town, leap the river, turn east, and come at the bridge from behind.

The general was informed of the plan at 9 p. m., Sept. 20. It first was necessary to clear enemy troops from the south bank, and American infantry with British tanks did this early the next day, taking 300 prisoners.

While this fighting was underway, boats were brought up and hidden near a factory power station to await H-hour, which was 3 p. m., Sept. 21.

At 2:45 p. m. a heavy barrage of artillery was poured on to the north bank, followed by smoke shells. Then the first of 26 boats stuck their noses in the water.

The Germans raked the river with artillery, mortar, machine gun and small arms fire. Thirteen of the boats returned. An eight-mile-an-hour tide carried them 500 yards west, and men had to go out and drag them back to the starting positions.

Again the boats braved the river.

"It was a case of paddling like hell with machine-gun bullets ripping the water, coming closer and closer and finally no longer hitting the water," said Col. R. H. Tucker, of Ansonia, Conn. "They hit something more solid."

Eight boats returned from the second trip. One landed with three dead and four wounded out of a boatload of 11 combat infantrymen. Some troops had to bail out the bullet-riddled boats with canteen cups.

Finally only five boats were left and there were 700 men still to get across. But the job was done and those who crossed found many dead Germans.

Striking east quickly, they overran an old Dutch fort surrounded by a moat.

"I don't know yet how we did it," Tucker said. "You'd never have got American troops out of a fortress like that. We took 30 live Germans."

The doughboys slugged their way over a 30-foot high railroad embankment and closed in on the north end of the bridge.

Meanwhile other troops, who also were veterans of Sicily and Normandy, were engaged in the fiercest fighting alongside British troops at the Nijmegen or south end of the bridge.

"The enemy fought with a fanaticism never before experienced by our veterans," said Lt. Col. Benjamin Vandervoort, of Columbus, Ohio.

SS (Elite Guard) German troops attacked Allied medical men kneeling by wounded. With bayonets and knives, the American and British rooted the Germans from their holes on the approaches to the bridge.

Finally both ends of the bridge were captured, and at 6 p. m. British tanks rolled across.

But it was due to the Dutch underground that there was a bridge there.

"These people really deserve liberation," said the general. The Germans wired the bridge for destruction, but the Dutch kept the wires cut.

H. A. ALEXANDER
For Congress

What have you ever done in your 15 years in Congress to build this District and raise its wage and salary scales above the lowest levels in the country? Or, have you been too busy with pensions for punctured politicians? What claim have you on the support of the Atlanta Federation of Trades?

Atlanta is one of the greatest insurance centers in the U. S., with thousands of people here depending on it for their living. What about this asinine attack by the Hillmanites on the insurance companies and their policyholders? Why was the attack started in your own District and against your own constituents, and as representative of this District why haven't you used some of your supposed influence in Congress to squelch the attack?

The fame of Atlanta as a great Medical Center is one of its vital assets. What about all this political meddling with the doctors, and why haven't you moved to stop it and protect your own constituents? Or do you think that Hillmanite politicians can do a better job than the doctors themselves?

What have you done to oppose discrimination by tariffs, freights and monopolies against this Section and to halt the beggarizing of Southern agriculture?

TO THE VOTERS OF THIS DISTRICT:

This District badly needs a change of its Congressman, and this country badly needs a strong, conservative Congress, free from radical influence and determined to maintain American principles.

Remember: You are not compelled to vote a "straight" ticket. You have an absolute right to vote a split ticket. You can vote for whom you will for President, and at the same time vote for the undersigned for Congress. To do so, scratch the name of the Hillmanite candidate for Congress, Robert Ramspeck, in the left hand column and leave mine.

MAJ. THOMAS G. CALLAWAY
Ordnance Depot Executive

Maj. Callaway Named 'Exec' Of Depot Here

Maj. Thomas G. Callaway, of Covington, has been appointed executive officer of Atlanta Ordnance Depot, it was announced by Col. George D. Barnes, commander.

The Covington officer has been stationed at the depot since it was ativated in February, 1942, and prior to that had been with the Motor Transport School at Fort McPherson.

Maj. Callaway was representing Newton county in the state legislature when he was called to active duty at Fort McPherson as a second lieutenant in July, 1942. He commanded the first company of soldier-students to graduate from the Motor Transport School and was later appointed secretary of the school. He has been a major since last October.

Immediately prior to his new assignment he was executive officer of the training center of the depot.

WFA To Buy Cotton at Parity

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) War Food Administrator Marvin Jones announced tonight that WFA will purchase from farmers, at parity prices, all cotton of the 1944 crop for which a loan schedule has been announced and which may be placed in acceptable storage.

The program will start as soon as arrangements can be made and extend through next June 30, with the Commodity Credit Corportation handling actual purchases.

At the same time Jones announced that the WFA will buy from producers, at parity prices less carrying charges to the end of the storage year, all unredeemed 1944 crop wheat which is under loan May 1, 1945. The wheat also will be bought through the CCC.

Jones said the CCC purchase prices for wheat in storage in terminal and subterminal elevators, will "be advanced from time to time" during the season.

WFA said its cotton sales policy, announced on August 26, will be modified to permit the CCC to sell cotton at not less than parity.

Latest figures at the Agriculture Department showed that the cotton parity price on August 15 this year, was 21.08 cents a pound. It was $1.50 a bushel on wheat on the same date. The September 15 parity prices have not yet been announced.

'Quebec Decisions' Reported to Stalin

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Kremlin today was in possession of all the decisions on the Far Eastern war that were reached by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at their Quebec conference.

The United States and British ambassadors, W. Averell Harriman and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, made a full report to Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov last night on instructions from Washington.

Stalin is reported to have been deeply interested in every phase of the Quebec conference and to have listened intently to the report of the military decisions reached by the two Allied leaders. He is said to have frequently asked questions.

Pole Cabinet Row

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, of the Polish government in exile delayed a decision today on a demand by the cabinet that Gen. Kasimierz Sosnkowski be removed as commander in chief of Polish forces and the possibility developed that unless he acts soon the entire cabinet, led by Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk will resign in protest.

First Offender Camp Plan Has Hammack Okay

State Director of Corrections F. R. Hammack has indorsed a proposal that Fulton county establish a public works camp for first offenders.

The county commissioners recently passed a resolution, offered by Chairman Ellis Barrett, of the public works committee, that Fulton set aside one of its prison camps for first offenders. It was pointed out that new transgressors of the law could thus be separated from hardened criminals, and could be more easily rehabilitated.

Fulton has 123 first offenders at present, the resolution said. It asked state assistance in establishing the camp at the earliest possible moment.

Indications were that prisoners from a large section of Georgia could be sent here, if Fulton set up a camp for first offenders and had state cooperation.

"I think such a move by Fulton county to establish a camp for first offenders is in keeping with Gov. Arnall's progressive program of prison reform," Hammack wrote the commissioners. "Fulton county commissioners are to be complimented on this action."

Captaincy in Prospect For Atlanta Inventor

Lt. S. V. Landers, son of Mrs. E. A. Landers, of 843 Park street, S. W., has been recommended for promotion to captain as a reward for devising a speedy method for preserving guns with cosmoline.

A post ordnance lieutenant at Camp Shelby, Miss., Landers, working with an enlisted man, devised a method of dipping rifles in a hot cosmoline bath, a preserving petroleum product, prior to crating the guns for storage.

The bath has licked the rifle preservation problem and has brought Landers and his assistant recommendations for awards under the civilian and military suggestion programs.

Lt. Landers was connected for 20 years with the Firestone Rubber Company here prior to entering the Army.

Hotel School Slates Registration Tomorrow

Registration for the Georgia Hotel Training school will be held tomorrow, from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., Piedmont hotel.

All persons desiring to take training in "Front Office Procedure" and "Housekeeping" must register in order that their applications can be approved by a committee from the hotel association.

The school is conducted under the supervision of the Atlanta Board of Education, the State Department of Distributive Education and the Georgia Hotel Association.

South's Electric Inspectors Meet Here Today

Present day emergency installations and postwar standards will be major topics of consideration at a three-day convention of the southern section of the International Association of Electrical Inspectors beginning today at the Ansley hotel.

Dewey L. Johnson, president of the group, announced yesterday that the organization is composed principally of governmental and insurance company electrical inspectors.

Mayor Hartsfield will deliver the address of welcome.

A. M. Miller, of Richmond, Va., is secretary of the organization, and George Welman, of New Orleans, is chairman of the executive committee.

James D. Lynett, of New York city, international president, and Victor H. Tousley, of Chicago, international secretary, will participate in the deliberations.

GI TO GENERAL

U. S. Private Finds Self Army Head

WITH U. S. AIRBORNE TROOPS IN HOLLAND, Sept. 22. (Delayed)—(AP)—Overnight Pvt. Theodore Bachenheimer became a general and leader of an army of 300 Dutch Partisans.

German-speaking Bachenheimer, of Fullerton, Cal., parachuted into Holland and wandered into a town near the German border on a personal reconnaissance.

The Nazis held the town when he entered and continued their hold on it during most of the next day, but Bachenheimer quickly made friends with the Dutch and organized his own army which was armed with captured German weapons.

LIKE WAR DEPARTMENT

The army called itself "the Free Netherland Army" and insisted on dubbing Pvt. Bachenheimer "kommandant." He set up headquarters in a steel factory, which is patrolled by sentries with Dutch army helmets and orange brassards—almost like the War Department in Washington.

Down one corridor in a glassed-in room pretty girls of high school age type rosters of the Dutch volunteers and keep records. There is an enlistment office for volunteers and a large room where scores of Quislings and other persons of dubious sympathies are kept under guard.

The floors of the building are spotless and the typewriters click constantly. Records are neatly filed away and the whole place is run with smooth efficiency.

SITUATION MAP

In Bachenheimer's headquarters he has a situation map showing where bands of Dutch Patriots are engaging the enemy. He knows the names and addresses of local collaborators and the location of explosives stored by the enemy.

Girls on Bachenheimer's staff drive cars on officials business and to transport the wounded. They also prepare and distribute meals, under his supervision new German bicycles are given to citizens needing transportation.

So important is his work that another parachute trooper has been assigned to maintain communications between Bachenheimer's headquarters and a U. S. regimental command post. High ranking American and British officers seeking information or guides are frequent callers.

Bachenheimer was born in Germany 21 years ago but was naturalized 10 years ago and has been killing Germans in Sicily and Italy. He fought at Anzio.

WILHELMINA WINS ORDER OF GARTER

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands was invested with the Order of the Garter, the highest British order, by King George VI of England in a simple private ceremony here today, the Netherlands news agency Aneta reported.

The Netherlands Queen thus became the only reigning foreign queen admitted since the order was founded by King Edward II of England in 1348. The only other women members are the present British Queen and Queen Mother Mary.

munications center of Bologna than reported yesterday, is now past the Apennine watershed, "the last major barrier for many miles," the official report said.

"The determined advance netted 2,600 prisoners and resulted in the slaying of thousands caught in merciless artillery concentrations."

Abandoning equipment in the mountains, Field Marshall Gen. Albert Kesselring's shattered division were in disorder, and the Americans were pursuing hotly, hoping to turn retreat into headlong flight.

While one Canadian column drove straight up the Adriatic in a four-mile march from Rimini, the Eighth Army turned strong forces westward to clear the Germans from dominating heights on the edge of the Po plain and open the ancient Via Aemilia highway northwest to Bologna.

British units captured San Giustina and cut the Rimini-Bologna railway four miles west of Rimin, the fallen Adriatic anchor of the Gothic line.

Indian troops crossed the Marecchia river and attacked the enemy strongpoint of Sant' Arcangelo, seven miles west of Rimini, and the mountain village of Poggio Berni, three miles farther southwest.

Allied warplanes thundered over the Po valley, destroying the bridges along seven enemy escape routes in an effort to leave Kesselring's forces stranded for destruction.

Associated Press Correspondent Sid Feder first reported the American breakthrough Saturday night, saying the doughboys had battered through what were considered the strongest of the Gothic fortifications, built in nine months.

Resistance was crushed north of the mountain town of Firenzuola, six miles east of Futa pass.

British troops covering the American east flank seized Monte Gasciali, Monte Carneoalone and Giogi de Villone, all about 25 miles northeast of Florence.

Prisoners taken by the Eighth and Fifth armies in the current offensive passed the 10,000 mark. The Eighth alone knocked out 54 German tanks.

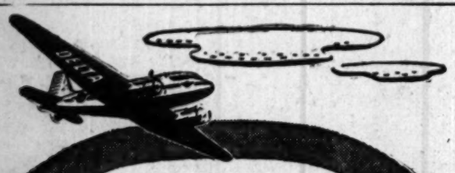

The American drive destroyed two-thirds of the German fourth parachute division and one battalion of the Lehr regiment, which was sent from Germany months ago to halt the Fifth's advance. The 715th German infantry division also was greatly weakened.

The Brazilian Expeditionary Force, first from South America ever to fight on European soil, ended its first week in the line today with a net gain of 10 miles north of Pisa along the west seacoast.

GOOD HUNTING . . . AND SHOOTING, TOO!—Marine Cpl. Edward E. Brooks, of Washington, D. miles from the Dutch-Belgian frontier.

The first contact with the encircled airborne force was made under the cover of darkness. Details of the river crossing were few, but it was known that the Poles brought at least a message of hope to the trapped men who have been fighting night and day for a week without respite.

CORRIDOR WON

The narrow corridor was four to five miles wide at its narrowest points and the German threat to sever it was ended, a dispatch from the Second Army said.

The Allied position in Holland was improved considerably by the reopening of the Eindhoven-Nijmegen road, which had been cut by the Germans, but the Nazis were expected to continue their determined stand at Arnhem. The situation around the vital Arnhem bridge was obscure. Apparently the Germans have given up Nijmegen as lost.

The bridgehead established by the Canadian First Army was about five miles northeast of the Belgian port of Antwerp in the area of Lochtenburg. The canal runs northeast from Antwerp to St. Leonard and then east to Turnhout, 25 miles from Antwerp. Some reports said Turnhout was being evacuated by the Germans.

NAZI CIVILIAN LABOR

Allied headquarters confirmed reports that civilians in communities north and east of Aachen had been pressed into service by the Nazis to dig defenses. No ground changed hands in that area Sunday, although terrific artillery duels continued.

The headquarters report said Hodges' First Army had taken 183,827 prisoners, and forces under Gen. Patton had captured 92,600, making a total of 276,427 for the U. S. 12th Army group since June 6.

It was anticipated that the First Allied Airborne Army, with the reinforcements flown in Saturday, and the British Second Army soon would be able to launch a new offensive in the Arnhem vicinity. The Germans were reported to have suffered heavy losses when their counterattacks in this sector were beaten back Saturday.

BRITISH SEIZE BEEK

The British Second Army in its drive up through Holland to the Arnhem area had already captured Beek, three miles southeast of Nijmegen, and just inside the German border. The dispatches indicated the Americans were just ahead of them inside Germany.

Berlin located the major airborne landings Saturday as south and southeast of Nijmegen, apparently in this same sector near the Reich frontier. German troops immediately attacked, broadcasts said.

The Paris radio said Sunday without elaboration that the Germans have evacuated Arnhem. There was no confirmation of this report from any other source.

The Germans struck violently in the Arnhem area nine miles north of Nijmegen, seeking to wipe out the isolated British airborne division.

The Second Army, swelled by thousands of glider-borne troops Saturday, was beating heavily for a full-scale surge over the river, with the Germans apparently holding the north end of the Arnhem bridge.

30 TANKS BEATEN BACK

The heaviest disclosed German counterblows fell northeast of Nancy in reaction against the Third Army drive toward Strasbourg.

At Dieuze, 28 miles northeast of Nancy 30 attacking Nazi tanks were beaten back by U. S. armor, artillery and planes, a front dispatch said. In this area in six days the Tihrd Army has wrecked more than 100 Nazi tanks, it added, and since August 1, the Third Army has destroyed 1,077.

Enemy resistance continued stubborn south of Metz. The Americans had pushed 30 miles east of Nancy, and 25 southeast of that city. Morey was taken in gains nine miles above Nancy.

U. S. First Army men continued to mop up in Stolberg six miles east of Aachen on the path to Cologne. In one sharp battle east of Busbach, below Stolberg, doughboys chopped down 40 per cent of an attacking Nazi force.

There was no word of progress of the U. S. Seventh Army, battling west and south of Belfort, and along the Riviera. Berlin radio said the new American Ninth Army had intensified its activity, but "made no progress toward the German frontier." The Ninth's sector was not specified.

In Holland, said SHAEF, the fighting was "particularly fierce in the vicinity of Arnhem" with the Germans bringing in "very strong pressure."

Chinese reports say that Japanese military authorities in Formosa, fearing Allied air attacks, have ordered the evacuation of all nonessential civilians from cities.

At the same time, according to these reports, all able-bodied persons in Formosa between the ages of 16 and 45 have been conscripted into the Japanese version of the home guard and those from 10 to 15 years old have been drafted into the labor corps. The enemy army also was reported to have requisitioned 60 per cent of Formosa's rice crop and many of its other resources.

Sweden Swinging From Neutrality

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 24.—(UP) The Swedish government's decision to close Swedish territorial ports in the Gulf of Bothnia and Baltic sea west of the Falsterbo canal represents, to all practical purposes, the most important swing from neutrality to a policy favoring the Allies Sweden has made since the start of the war, informed quarters agreed today.

The official communique announcing the move understandably did not refer to the effect it would have on Swedish-German trade, but while officials would not discuss it publicly, political circles concurred that the action was motivated by both political and immediate military considerations.

The primary reason, however, is the new balance of power between the Germans and the Russians in the Baltic as a result of the Red army's successes in that region, together with the Russo-Finnish armistice.

In addition, it was believed that Secretary of State Cordell Hull's recent disclosures that the Allies were considering the matter of Swedish exports to Germany may also have influenced Stockholm's decision.

Cairo Food Processor, Robert Crine, Dies

CAIRO, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Robert V. Crine, 64, widely known producer and processor of food crops, died at his home here today after a brief illness.

A native of Morganville, N. J., he came here about 16 years ago and pioneered in the development of okra crops in this section. He also was a large producer of tomato plants.

Greece Demands Back Thrace, Macedonia

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Greek government flatly demanded today that the Bulgarians "hand over at once unconditionally and without further discussion the Greek territories of Macedonia and Thrace which they are occupying."

Control of mountain passes by which the Bulgars are able to enter Greece was also demanded in the postwar settlements.

The Greek attitude was announced at a press conference on behalf of the government, established in Italy and awaiting the first opportunity to return home, by George A. Gartalis, minister of information.

He explained he made the announcement because a press dispatch had quoted the Bulgarian propaganda minister as saying an agreement had been reached between Bulgarian and Greek representatives "concerning settlement of certain administrative and military questions in northern Greek provinces occupied by the Bulgars."

Planes Help Repel Nazi Counterblows

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Hundreds of Allied planes have blasted German ground positions in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area in Holland and in the Nancy area Ninth Air Force Thunderbolts assisted in repulsing strong tank-led enemy counterattacks despite encountering near-gales and rain in both regions.

Taking off in mist and thick clouds yesterday fighter-bombers ranged over Holland in close support for Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second Army and for the airborne forces fighting their way out of a Nazi trap at Arnhem.

In addition to treetop-level machinegun attacks on German troops on both sides of the Eindhoven-Nijmegen corridor, the planes blasted enemy transport, hitting seven locomotives and 47 freight cars.

Elsewhere Mustangs machinegunned enemy transport in Belgium and British aircraft successfully attacked shipping off Norway, leaving four small ships afire.

These raids followed an attack in "very great strength" by RAF heavy bombers on the German industrial and communications towns of Neuss and Munster in the Ruhr valley Saturday night.

In the Nancy area, a tremendous tank battle was in progress when the Thunderbolts blasted German armored formations.

At least 100 Nazi tanks and armored vehicles were locked in battle with American tanks when the Thunderbolts roared across the battlefield. They skip-bombed through the enemy formations and strafed every vehicle they could get their sights on.

Despite bad weather the RAF night bombers dumped well over 3,500 tons of bombs on the two German cities with the attack concentrated on Neuss, which has a large railroad marshaling yard with a capacity of 2,200 freight cars. The air ministry said night attacks cost the British 22 planes. Neuss is on the western banks of the Rhine opposite Dusseldorf.

6 Italian Fascists Ordered Jailed

ROME, Sept. 24.—(INS)—Count Carlo Sforza, president of the Italian purge commission, issued orders today for the arrest of six prominent Fascists, following the reported reprisal shooting in northern Italy of 20 persons.

After a Republican Fascist radio broadcast announced that the twenty persons in northern Italy were shot and 30 others sentenced to life imprisonment—apparently in reprisal for the execution of Pietro Caruso, former Rome Fascist police chief—Sforza issued arrest orders for:

Lilienthal Urges Industrialization

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 24.—(AP) David Lilienthal, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said here tonight that local and regional planning, low-priced electricity, good highways and revision of its railway rates were tools by which the southeast could have industrialization and its higher level of income "without the evils of oversized cities."

In an address prepared for delivery before the opening session of League of Virginia Municipalities 1944 convention, the TVA chief asserted that the south's low level of income was attributable to the fact that it has been the producer of raw products, instead of processing them.

"We do not need to choose between low income and the evils of congested industrial concentrations," he declared. "We do not need to accept as inevitable these evils of industrialization in order to have its benefits."

Community and regional planning, he said, was of the first importance in avoiding "the mistakes of this nation's older industrial cities."

He said electricity—"at a rate unaffected by geographical location anywhere on a transmission network"—was second in importance in helping the south avoid "the mistakes of this nation's older industrial cities."

'Tank Killer' Paced U. S. Over France

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) The Army's new 18½-ton tank destroyer with its 76 mm. cannon was the "stream-lined speed demon that put a streak of lightning in our drive across France," the War Department was informed today by one of its observers.

Capt. Charles R. Adkins, automotive expert for the Army who has reported back after a month in France, asserted that the "M-18 is the hottest thing in today's armored warfare."

A tank destroyer unit of M-18s in one instance advanced 65 miles in three and a half hours of combat, he said. The shooting vehicle has helped handle the land mind problem because once a breakthrough has been obtained, the M-18 advances so rapidly that the enemy finds it almost impossible to plant new fields in its path.

The destroyer is mounted on 10 bogey wheels operating independently; thus one damaged wheel will not stop the M-18. A new engine can be installed in an hour and three-quarters.

VICAR MICHAEL COLEMAN
Londoner Here for Mission.

Blitz Made Many Christians, Vicar Reveals

By JOY BARNETT.

Seeing tough East End cockneys coming to services and singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers" is one of the inspirations Dr. Michael Coleman, vicar of All Hallows' church of London, remembers from the horrors of the blitz.

The handsome vicar, who is in Atlanta this week for a mission at St. Luke's Episcopal church, told of his experiences in the last two years; working as chaplain for Vancouver, B. C., shipyards; going to sea on freighters and tankers of the British Merchant Navy, and acting as the Archbishop of Canterbury's representative to the people of the diocese of British Columbia. At 11 a. m. today he will preach his first sermon, with another at 8 p. m., and two daily through Thursday at noon and 8 p. m. His subject is the "Good Earthquake."

All Hallows', now in rubble and ruin atop Tower Hill within 300 yards of London's famous Tower, has an unbelievably long and colorful history. Built by the Druids in pre-Christian days, and first destroyed in 54 B. C., it was rebuilt by Julius Caesar for his Roman city. The conqueror landed in England near the church, on a place now called Puddle Dock, by the unimpressed Londoners. English and American great, William Penn, William the Conqueror, Richard Couer de Lion, and John Quincy Adams, our sixth President, were prominently connected with it.

Pennsylvania's settler and benefactor was born in the dining room of the rectory, and baptized in the church font. Adams was married within the portals of the seemingly indestructible church.

Pocked and scarred by wars over the years, the church finally fell to Hitler's bombing in 1941, and even the temporary structure was laid low by a robot this year. Remaining, however, are a sunken vestry and crypt, built more than 1,000 years ago, on the marshy ground. Sinking at the rate of 10 inches every 100 years, they are now 14 feet below the earth's surface. When rebuilt after the war, the church will again stand over them.

Also chaplain for the port of London for the rough, seafaring men, he came to Canada on a merchant freighter, and on various trips with the men he saw action in the North Atlantic. He described the sailors as his "great friends, who felt the need of Christ, but failed to find Him in the church."

Planning to leave Friday for Baltimore, he added in his clipped British voice, "I think you southerners understand us stolid, slow Englishmen better than your northern countrymen, because your history means much to you, as it does to us." Remarking that Englishmen are "living history," he said that Americans know their background better than the British.

On his opinion of the church at the peace table, he commented, "If our people are educated in the ways of Christ, they will rise up and see that the politicians and statesmen make the peace they desire, a peace of God."

Bataan Group To Meet At YMCA Tomorrow

The Philippine-American club will meet at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A. on Luckie street. Relatives of all men held prisoner by Japan are invited to attend.

Highlights of the Bataan Assembly, held in Washington, D. C., September 10, will be discussed, and the organization will sponsor a sewing project to make clothes for the Philippines. All who would like to participate in this project are also invited to the meeting.

Two Days' Supply

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) Only 3,000 new passenger cars, the same quota as in September, will be available for rationing in October, the Office of Price Administration reported today. The country's remaining supply of new automobiles now is below 20,000, less than a normal two days' supply.

THIS GERMAN COST TOO MUCH

WITH U. S. AIRBORNE TROOPS IN HOLLAND, Sept. 21.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Lt. John Spooner, of Wilmington, N. C., demonstrated his marksmanship today by picking off a German observer from a telephone pole at 6,000 yards with a field artillery gun, but his feat did not entirely please his commanding officer.

Spooner got his man after firing three smoke bursts and then 10 rounds with a 75 MM. gun.

His colonel, however, figured the ammunition cost the taxpayers $100 whereas "the infantry kills Germans at five cents a round."

FFI's Are Made Part Of New French Army

PARIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The French Forces of the Interior were made a part of the French army and subject to rules of military discipline today by decree of the ministry of war, thus partly solving a problem which has been discussed for three weeks by the government and the council of national resistance.

Still undecided is whether FFI officers are entitled to an equal rank with their counterparts in the regular army. One contention is that FFI officers are not trained in the use of weapons and the tactics of modern warfare.

The ministry of war ruled that FFI enlisted and noncommissioned personnel must be given the same consideration as the regular army in the matter of pay, grade advancements and decorations. Records of FFI personnel will be investigated.

Another distinction was accorded the FFI. They will be entered in the army as distinct FFI units. Only those who fought voluntarily against the enemy will be considered as belonging to the FFI organization.

Aid to War Needy

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The National War Fund announced it has appropriated an additional $1,582,380 for the quarter beginning October 1 to meet emergency needs arising from recent Japanese drives into China, robot bombings in England and "critical conditions" in Greece.

Donald Nelson Back; Will See FDR Soon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) Donald M. Nelson returned from his presidential mission to China today, enthusiastic about the prospects of increasing that nation's industrial war contribution but keeping his own counsel about his plans and prospects in the War Production Board.

Most details of the results of the mission were withheld pending a report to President Roosevelt which Nelson hoped to make soon, perhaps in a day or two.

He did say that he brought back with him a set of recommendations which he had submitted to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, who also went on the trip for military co-operation conferences with Chiang, remained in China.

The Champ Defends His Title

Whoever wins the battle of the ballots November 7, President Roosevelt has successfully defended his title as the world's most effective radio speaker. Even the most prejudiced of his critics are conceding that following his magnificent speech of Saturday night.

Governor Dewey, thanks to the tedious tutelage of the professional announcer, Lowell Thomas, has developed a microphone technique which is something more than ordinary. But Governor Dewey, the best day he ever saw, couldn't hold a candle to the Roosevelt whose measured tones blasted Republican victory hopes night before last.

Nor was it a case of "not so much what he said as the way he said it." For, with a cleverness that had his listeners hanging on his every word, President Roosevelt disposed, concisely but completely, of the carefully calculated morass of fiction and fraud about which the Republicans have built their campaign.

Not once did the President mention his opponent by name, but more than once he floored him by inference. His references to those who might be too young to remember the Hoover depression, who await the various polls of public opinion before determining a stand, who ridiculed the nation's ability to produce 50,000 airplanes a year—all these barbs could have been aimed at but one man, Tom Dewey.

For the Republican party as a whole, the President had less leniency. From his opening reference to the Republican platform plank wherein is pledged support of the National Labor Relations Act, the Wage and Hour Act and other New Deal measures, right on through to his scathing "The fruits of victory this time will not be apples sold on street corners," Mr. Roosevelt wasted neither words nor time in reminding the nation of the insincerity and inconsistency of the Republican Old Guard.

It was, in short, a masterful address by a masterful statesman . . . and a masterful politician. The President has lost none of his fire and zest as a campaign speaker, and, unless we miss our guess, has, by this one speech, convinced a vast majority of the several million independent voters who traditionally decide this nation's presidential elections.

Germans Have Real 'Secret Weapon'

It is rather surprising, come to think of it, that the Germans, despite all their loud and fantastic boastings about "secret weapons," have failed to realize they possess one weapon which, if they used it, would prove really effective in bringing the war to an end. It would, at the same time, probably make that ending far easier for themselves than it now promises to be.

That weapon is their own elimination of Hitler and all his gang from control of their country. Get rid of the Nazi gangsters and it would be possible for the Germans to end their present suffering and the agony which looms if they leave the Hitlerites in command.

Not that anything the German can do can avert a rigid military occupation of all their land. This is necessary, if the world is to take effective steps to prevent outbreak of further criminal acts by militaristic Germany.

But, while the German people are listening to Nazi ranting about secret weapons, they might find it far more profitable to wake up to the one weapon within their grasp, the end of Nazism and the elimination—"liquidation" wouldn't hurt—of Hitler, Goebbels, Himmler and all the unsavory crew.

Ownership Puzzle in Liberated Lands

Part of the calculated disruption of the social and economic structures in the lands occupied by Germany consisted of destruction of all records of ownership of most local industry and other properties. Shares in such plants were transferred to German owners who, of course, have absolutely no moral right to property they acquired only by theft. Even where they did not thus assume ownership, they deliberately destroyed all records they could find for the sole purpose of creating as much confusion as possible in the restoration of the now liberated countries.

Taking France as an example, it is reported that several Allied missions are already surveying the industrial situation there. Primarily, of course, the goal sought is the earliest possible restoration to operation of the French industrial plants. This will not only aid Allied war production, it will help tremendously in solving the problems of civilian supply and of employment for the French people.

However, these missions have found it is difficult to determine true ownership of many plants, because of German disruption, that many factories and other properties will have to be operated under trusteeships until such time the proper authorities—probably local courts—can determine who owns what.

Indeed it is now indicated that French industry will be divided into three classifications. The first group of plants will be completely nationalized. The second group will be rigidly controlled in the national interest and the third will be left altogether to private enterprise.

It must be remembered, however, that all present arrangements must be, by circumstance, more or less temporary. Developments of the future years of peace may make advisable drastic changes in the economic picture in many countries.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

Not Indispenasble

Editor, Constitution: According to Mr. Dewey there is no indispensible man. Granting this to be true, it takes time and experience to replace him.

The skilled mechanic in a war plant is not indispensable, but can be replaced without loss of time and wasted material.

The general manager of any great industrial plant is not indispensable, but, with his intimate knowledge of the personnel and details of operation, would or should any board of directors remove him and put in a new man without just cause, for the reason that he had served for several years in that position.

The fact that, of all the Allied nations, the United States is holding an election in the midst of a world war for survival proves the absolute democracy of the nation and the able surdity of the talk of dictatorship.

Granting, for the sake of argument, that Mr. Dewey has the natural ability of Mr. Roosevelt (which, however, I do not believe), the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has helped mold Allied strategy, that he has been in constant touch and frequent conferences with the heads of the other Allied nations, that he hold the respect and confidence of all of them, that he has held down inflation to an absolute minimum and that under his leadership we have an Army and Navy second to none and have produced ships, planes, war materials and food in quantities far in excess of the most liberal estimates, makes him as nearly indispensable as a man can be.

'Can we afford, as an intelligent, democratic people, to turn down the man who has, so far successfully, carried us through the greatest war in history, whose ideas of peace come are in accord with our Allies and whose policies both at home and abroad, of the past years speak for themselves; for an untried candidate whose policies, taken from his own campaign speeches, are made to conform to the particular sentiment of each section of the country addressed by him.

Licensed Lotteries?

Editor, Constitution: The apparently uncontrollable nature of lottery operations, profits of which are strengthening the outlaw, underworld elements of our society leads us to a study of practical solutions. Possibly the same rigid enforcement of income tax laws as applied to legitimate business—might discourage these profiteers to the point of extinction.

Another solution is that of those reformers who constantly seek suitable incorporated substitutes for usurers, panderers, gamblers, etc. This technique issues licenses to state supervised agencies which agree to pay taxes and operate conservatively so that the evil social effects of their services and merchandise will not shock the sensibilities of people of good will—particularly of those in the churches.

Under prevailing ethics—perhaps we could follow this technique and repeal the present prohibitions on gambling as we have on usury and whisky. To simplify and economize supervision and to expedite matters, we might even allow the present holders of "liquor" and "high rate" small loan licenses to issue lottery tickets to the general public, paying 50 per cent of gross receipts as taxes, distributing 10 per cent to charity, 20 per cent for public schools, and 20 per cent for law enforcement agencies. The extra lawyers and policemen, thereby financed, could perfect the semi-state monopoly by suppressing unlicensed, untaxed operators. Such repeal legislation could not worsen matters. Moreover, it would implement our present public policy as sponsored by both our major political parties. This expediency, however, would not make the licensed business any less sinful, or immoral, or vicious.

Not Really Such a Big Hero

Well, I don't think he is such a hero.

I mean this Russell L. Hoak, of Elkhart, Ind., who resigned his job as vice president of the First National Bank in that city to become a brakeman on the New York Central.

He said he was doing it to "ease the manpower shortage a bit."

I don't believe it. He makes me mad. I don't think he is a hero at all. He is nothing but a rank opportunist. The fellow is bound to be doing what he always wanted to do—be a brakeman.

I will wager a modest sum that if you go around to banks, newspaper offices, real estate boards, or business offices generally, you will find a lot of frustrated men who will go to their graves feeling cheated because they didn't get, once in their lives, to realize that secret ambition to be a policeman, a brakeman, a railroad engineer, a trap drummer or a circus clown.

It isn't confined to vice presidents of banks. Why, just the other day I was out with a bank president and he was wishing he could get away from it all. He seemed to think that maybe, after all, he had made a big mistake when he left the farm and came into town. He told me for a half-hour about the general store and its smells of harness and cheese and soap and kerosene. He could have stayed right there and farmed on the side and married the girl with the corn-silk hair who sang in the choir. Shucks, it would have been the life. I looked at him curiously. Here he was, a handler of millions; a man to whom men of wealth came for judgment and advice. And he was thinking about a girl with corn-silk hair and a general store where men sat on the front porch and whittled and talked and spat tobacco juice in the dust, and time went by like a slow, peaceful river.

Trap Drummers It wasn't many weeks ago that I was sitting in a night club with a vice president of a big company and he was saying how he sometimes wished he had gone ahead and played the trap drums in the college band. It had gone on to be a good band, making good money and records, and traveling. The spotlights were on it and always the drummer got a special spot when he twirled his sticks and hammered the gongs and let his hair fall down over his eyes.

"You know," he said, "I was good. One night last month at the convention I took on a few scotches and we went out with a party to a night club. Late in the morning I got to talking with the drummer and it seemed a good idea to accept his invitation to get in the groove. I really gave them a banging. You know how wives are? Well, the next morning all she did was look at me coldly and say, 'Thank God none of your directors were there.' But you know, sometimes I find myself wishing I had tried it a few years. Now and then my fingers itch to play the traps. What did you want to do?" he asked suddenly.

"Travel with a circus," I said. "And I did it, too, for a month. It was fine to see the performance and then go into town for a while and then to the train and the privilege car and sit there talking and eating and watching the card games. And then to go back through the swaying cars, smelling the rubbing oils and liniments in the performers' cars where the high-wire men slept; seeing the costumes swaying in the dim light as they moved with the motion of the sleeping car; going to bed and listening to the clicking of the wheels, hearing the long whistle in the night. And then waking in another town and sticking one's head out the car door to see if the flag was up on the cook tent. To be acquainted with elephants is something," I said. "Do you know, elephants make good friends. Why, I recall an elephant named Ena who remembered me for a year."

"Tell me about her," he said.

And so I did, and about the walk-arounds and the parades and smell and feel of pulsing life of a circus.

"Maybe I should have been a trap drummer in a circus band," he said. "That's what I always wanted to do, play the drums. But my old man, who meant well, said he'd never speak to me again if I went off with that college band. I could really handle those sticks. I could have been as good as Krupa. But I went into business."

No Hero So, we both decided this bank vice president at Elkhart was not quite honest when he said he was quitting to help out with the war effort.

He just figured it out one day and saw that he could and so he went off to be a brakeman like he always had wanted to do . . . climbing over the moving cars—signalling to the engineer, standing on the back of the caboose watching the wind from the train make the weeds sway along the right of way, seeing the little swirl of dust behind the train; or maybe sitting in the caboose eating off an oilcloth covered table, seeing the little towns go by; or lying in a bunk at night listening to the long whistle in the night, seeing the lights of the little towns come up and go past.

Why, doggone it, this man is no hero, easing the war effort.

He is just one of those rare persons who put down what they don't want to do and go and do what they have always yearned to do.

RALPH T. JONES

'That City' Was Fine, He Must Mean Paris

He wrote me a letter on June 5, writing on board a ship crossing the English channel. He, and a lot of other Americans, had a date to keep the following day on the beaches of Normandy.

He concluded that letter with a postscript: "I'll write you from Paris on July 4th."

When time had proved he had been somewhat overoptimistic, when Paris was still in German hands, I wrote, in one of my letters to him, "How about writing me that letter from Paris?"

On last Friday a letter came from him, written after receipt of my letter containing that request for a Paris letter.

"Dear Dad," he wrote, "I'm sorry but it is too late to write you that letter from a certain city. But it sure is a great city, a swell place."

When It's a Girl He wrote, in that letter, of the new daughter who arrived late in August. He has, of course, never seen the child. Nor, for that matter, have we seen our latest granddaughter. We are waiting for the end of the war in Europe, when plans are for the baby and her English mother, that new daughter of ours, to come over here as soon as they can.

Who, we wonder, will be home first? Son, from the Army, or his wife and baby? It will be exciting time, for all three arrivals.

In his letter he didn't say much about the baby. The important item for him was that his wife was doing well, that everything had gone smoothly, and that she wrote, when the baby was two weeks old, that it was very good and slept well at night, not disturbing her too much. "What do you think of your new granddaughter?" he asked.

Well, that is the fifth granddaughter. Nary a grandson. And the four older ones, the four we know so well, are such important little personages; they mean so much to us and we are so proud of them, it would be disloyalty to all four to permit trace of disappointment to linger.

But I know he was, and probably still is, a little disappointed. He had written so frequently about the "son" that was expected. He probably won't get over his disappointment for some time to come. I know exactly when it will fade away into forgotten nothingness, though.

It will be just a few minutes after he first sees his daughter, for himself. After he has held her in his arms and after his nostrils have recognized the sweet, baby smell of her.

It will be after he has heard her coo and gurgle and cry. After he has made the astonishing discovery that her eyes are blue and that her little fingers cling around one of his with a dependency and a confidence, a trust and a love that is soft and warm, yet strangely strong.

The Old Story I know so many young fathers whose first babies have turned out to be the sex they had not anticipated. Always, within a few seconds of that first holding of the newborn came that light of realization in the paternal eyes and, a minute or two later, they'd say, "I always wanted a girl—or a boy," as the case might be—"really."

It is harder for a new father who is away on urgent business, such as taking an important journey to Berlin, who cannot, therefore, see the new arrival for weeks or months or, perhaps, years.

He can only imagine, and imagination is no good at all under such circumstances. All he can do is wonder if the young lady looks like her mother and hope she does. All he can do is heave a great sigh of relief when he knows the mother has come through the ordeal as she should, that she is well and so forth and so on.

The baby is, inevitably, a very secondary consideration. Just a baby, his, but only in the literal sense. She won't really be his until that hour when he holds her in his arms and tries to talk baby language with her.

Thus, for all the weeks until the magic of baby love can get in its inexorable work, he'll remember he had wanted a boy and he'll probably be a trifle resentful and a little illogical.

He's forget the old line of argument with which the father of a first-born girl convinces himself he would have been utterly disgusted had the young'un been male.

That line, "A girl is so much better company for her mother."

It is a true line. But nevertheless it is just a proxy, pinch-hitting for the real truth. Which is, regardless of sex, the baby is just the one you wanted. You know it when you can touch its velvet skin and perform the first service, as a dad, for the most wonderful child the world has ever seen.

As a granddad, I know it is just that wonderful—as wonderful as the four cousins who preceded her into our hearts.

Insuring Good Citizens

Something over one and one-half million young Americans have been rejected for military service or quickly discharged as mentally unfit. A fraction of these were insane—mentally ill—but most of them were only spoiled. They had been given their own way since infancy and were strangers to discipline. Their only rule of life was to gratify each desire as it developed. And they reacted to military restraint by pouting and becoming sullen and hysterical.

It wasn't their fault. A razor strap applied to the fundament in time would have saved them. And military discipline, sugar coated and made palatable, would have redeemed them in their middle teens.

Other young men, perhaps numbering millions, were rejected for military service because of preventable and curable disease or because of illiteracy. These, also, were needlessly wasted, for the diseased could have been protected or cured and the unschooled could have been given adequate education if they had been caught in time.

Thus we wasted a nation's greatest asset, and this is a thing to remember when we consider the advisability of compulsory military training.

You have seen soft and slouchy youngsters come home after a few months of training with their heads up and their backs flat, moving with a new grace that only steel-spring muscles can give. A year of such training provides a reserve of health and stamina that will last for decades.

The primary purpose of compulsory military training is to insure the nation's safety, but the first concern of those who plan it should be the permanent welfare of the boys themselves.

Their training should not be a tiresome duty, but a coveted privilege, and their uniforms, like those of Annapolis and West Point, should make them "somebodies." Decent pride doesn't hurt a kid.

With their military training they should get education, by the new Army method that crowds years of ordinary book learning into one. And they should be moved to a new camp every 60 or 90 days, to become acquainted with all sections of the nation and learn the customs, interest, attitudes and peculiar problems of each.

Those trained by the Navy should be taken to all parts of the world to learn at first hand what America's interests are, and why.

A year of such training for all our boys would not only prevent attack; it would give us the most literate and most fit and best behaved generation in our history.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

COTTON PICKING TIME IN GEORGIA

(From the Dalton News.)

Soon it will be cotton picking time in North Georgia. Rural schools will take a vacation while boys and girls help pick the white bolls.

Once cotton was kind in the south. Our whole agricultural economy was built around the staple. In recent years cotton has had rivals. Now the peanut is the number one producer of farm revenue in some sections. In others tobacco leads.

Peaches, pecans, livestock, chickens and other cash crops add to the total income of the state and, in some counties, far outweigh cotton in importance.

Whitfield county doesn't have much land that is cotton land. The cotton crop has been decreasing, in number of bales ginned, in recent years, and in the future we may expect a continued decline.

Some textile men fear that the day of cotton is over. That is not likely, even though rayon, nylon, and other materials may play a greater part in the fabrics of the future. Cotton will remain one of the most important crops of the south, but there may be less cotton and more potatoes, timber, dairy cows, pastures, in our own section.

Dewey Misses His Master's Voice

Yes, I listened to Roosevelt. Who, besides Dewey, didn't?

If, as the papers reported, the radio in Mr. Dewey's private car wasn't working, I am convinced there must be something to this mental telepathy business: Why else would they have had to stop the train three times for hot-boxes which turned out to be only Dewey's ears burning?

Most of Mr. Roosevelt's speech was very good. But it seems to me he could have dispensed with his reference to Hoover. Respect for the dead is just plain good taste.

His defense of Falla was a masterpiece. There's no truer saying than that a man will cuss you about his money, fight you about his woman, and kill you about his dog.

Be that as it may, if FDR isn't campaigning in "the usual sense of the word," then Lord have mercy on the GOP if ever he takes a notion to.

Incidentally, I reckon Mr. Dewey will think twice before ever he jumps on another "tired, old man."

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

GOP Preparation Record Unimpressive

WASHINGTON—Gov. Dewey's charge that the Roosevelt administration made "absolutely no preparation for the war which it now claims it foresaw" is so ridiculous, of course, that it falls of its own weight.

It is on a par with another classic statement he made about the existence of a "Roosevelt depression" between 1933 and 1940, during which our national income just about doubled.

The public will be inclined to pass up both statements as a slip of the tongue, or as something the youthful New York Governor didn't really mean. Perhaps the most charitable interpretation that could be made of them is that he was merely engaging in the type of "campaign oratory" for which Wendell Willkie apologized after the 1940 election.

Unfortunately it seems to be a part of our political system that a candidate for public office can make any sort of loose-lipped charge he pleases about his opponent, without any regard for the facts. Usually, however, candidates for the high office of President are a bit more restrained in the exercise of this privilege.

The Dewey charge about the administration making "absolutely no preparations" for defense in case of war is so flagrant that it needs no answer. But it is interesting to go into the record for the purpose of seeing what the attitude of his own party was with respect to the many forward-looking moves made by the administration during the years before Pearl Harbor.

Bulwinkle No better analysis of the situation has been made than one presented to the lower house the other day by Rep. Bulwinkle, of North Carolina.

The Tarheel congressman started out by citing the Vinson naval bill of 1933, which brought the Navy up to treaty strength—a measure made necessary, he reminded, because of the neglect our naval establishment suffered under three previous Republican administrations, including the scrapping of important units under Harding.

Then he cited the following:

Legislation adopted in 1935 bringing the Army to its peacetime strength of 165,000 from the Republican-established number of 118,750 under the Hoover administration, which had "whittled away" the number of enlisted men in each company from 120 to 70.

Establishment of the CCC camps, which went a far ways in giving thousands of young men the preliminaries of military training.

The 1938 proposal for strengthening our defenses at Guam, defeated through the fact largely that it was opposed by 138 Republican congressmen, whereas only 15 of them supported it.

Repeal of the arms embargo in 1939, opposed by 150 Republicans, with only eight voting with the Democratic majority.

The Selective Service Act, passed in 1940 over the opposition of two-thirds of the Republican membership voting.

Extension of selective service four months before Pearl Harbor, when 133 Republicans voted against it, with only 21 recorded in support.

Repeal of the ban against arming merchant ships, opposed by 113 Republicans and supported by only 39.

The agreement effected by the President with Iceland under which the United States obtained important bases in the North Atlantic, which brought "moans of anguish" from the Republicans.

The exchange of 50 over-age destroyers, before Pearl Harbor, for leases on British-owned islands for construction of naval and air bases, severely criticized by Republicans at the time.

Lease-lend legislation, first enacted in 1941 over the vigorous opposition of 135 Republicans and supported by only 25.

The first lease-lend appropriations, opposed by a total of 55 house members, of whom 45 were Republicans.

Sufficient The list could be extended indefinitely, but Rep. Bulwinkle thought this would suffice to answer the Dewey charge.

What is more interesting about it is that it shows Gov. Dewey's party was opposed to nearly every advance step taken by the administration in preparing the country for the conflict that lay ahead.

In the light of that record, it comes with even poorer grace for the Republican presidential nominee to hurl an irresponsible charge of the kind.

Finally, it hardly seems necessary to make the reminder that during those years immediately prior to the European outbreak, when Hitler and Mussolini were threatening the peace of the world, the one voice that cried out for a "quarantine of the aggressors" was the voice of the President. And for that he was bitterly assailed by the Republicans as a "warmonger."

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

On the Status of Fulton Police Reform

What is the present status of proposed police reorganization for Fulton county?

The commissioners are marking time while Mrs. Ruth Knight, executive secretary of Fulton civil service board, is gathering information on police civil service systems from other communities. She has been asked to present for the commission's approval a set of rules, including competitive examinations for police officers. When these are approved an examination for a chief to succeed Mr. Mathieson will be held. The new head will take over immediately, and Chief Mathieson will be given subsidiary duties until his resignation becomes effective on March 1.

Whether or not the new chief should come from the present force is one of the points of argument between the two opposing factions of the commission.

Commissioner Charlie Brown believes the examination should be open to outsiders, but doubts that outsiders will apply, since they won't have enough time to get ready and qualify. He thinks possibly one or two in the department will be able to pass the examination, but does not believe they would be respected enough as chief, since they would have belonged to one or another of existing factions in the department.

Mr. Brown has said, however, that he "will vote for the man making the best grade and will give him my support."

Commissioner Ellis Barret has made the statement that he would not vote for any man outside the department.

Chairman Gloer Hailey says he is "satisfied we have men in the department who will make high grades, and if I am convinced that one or two of them are the best qualified, I will vote for one of them."

The usual civil service procedure is to submit the names of the three highest qualifying, one of whom is then selected.

Under what kind of reorganization plan will the new chief work?

One plan has been offered by Commissioner Ed Almand, one by Mr. Brown. Mr. Almand's calls for no drastic changes. Mr. Brown's calls for civil service, thorough training of policemen, and compulsory retirement at 65.

Public opinion is soundly behind the Brown plan, but some members of the commission claim that it is ambiguous in certain instances and illegal in others. Mr. Brown insists it is neither—and he says he has the advice of lawyers who have read it carefully.

Some members of the commission have resented Mr. Brown and Commissioner Clarence Duncan "going off by themselves and getting up a reorganization plan over the heads of the others when it is the equal responsibility of the board."

To this Mr. Brown has replied that he was due to be police committee chairman January 1 and that was why he went ahead with his plan.

As to retirementof Chief Mathieson and other members of the force over 65—Commissioners Brown and Duncan believe they should be retired October 1, on full pay until their resignations become effective March 1.

The other commissioners, with the backing of the county attorney, say they can't legally do this. Nor can they pay the retiring officers the maximum pension due them until the law is amended in the January legislative assembly. They say the only thing they can do now is accept the resignations of the older men effective March 1, thus allowing them time to get the benefits of the amended pension act.

Mrs. Knight states it will take at least 10 days to obtain the requested information on civil service. Reorganization will probably remain static until the information arrives and Mrs. Knight can study it and prepare her recommendations.

The commissioners to all appearances intend to set up a civil service system for all members of the police department. The League of Women Voters has long advocated this for both the Atlanta and Fulton county departments, in the firm belief that this is the only system which will produce competent, trained, qualified officers, chosen and promoted on merit rather than on a basis of political patronage.

A merit system of job appointment is the only way to remove police from politics, and the league is hopeful that a strong civil service system for the police department will come out of the present controversy.

"Although radio provides the American public with high-type entertainment at no direct cost, many people of other generations bemoan the loss of vaudeville."—From article . . . "Then and Now."

How fortunate that we can hold our pleasant memories close
And soon forget the bitter taste of some unpleasant dose—
We view the pleasures of the past, and think they were the best,
Forgetting they were flavored with a piquant, youthful zest.
We speak of mother's cooking, of the pies she used to bake,
The way she fried the sausage or compounded johnny-cake
And many men have wrecked their wedding ships on reefs of strife
Because they waxed poetical in boasting to the wife
Of mother's kitchen methods, of the food she used to cook.
And how she used her recipes not studied in the book . . .
But in the light of later years how often we have seen
Our mothers were not wizards in the matter of cuisine
Yet we enjoyed it greatly and our constitutions thrived
And as a testimonial, the fittest ones survived.
But what we started to discuss before we jumped the track
Was how so many people wish that vaudeville was back
When every night we listen to some entertaining show
Delivered to us gratis by means of radio—
The funny speeches on the air, discussions of the plan
To save the nation from the evil clutches of "That Man" . . .
Weep not for ancient vaudeville, for vaudeville is here
With its antiquated wheezes in each presidential year!

Communique From Hollywood

Nice to get back to Hollywood, back to all the familiar places, Hollywood Blvd., the Brown Derby, and up in that tree next to Hedy Lamarr's house.

Dorothy Lamour asked me if those South Sea island girls really looked anything like her. I told her: "Yes, from the feet down."

Mickey Rooney is in the Army now. I don't know who the studio is getting to replace him, but I saw an Andy Hardy picture the other day, and Lewis Stone was having a heart-to-heart talk with Charles Laughton. Also came back and learned Betty Hutton was touring the east. She'll be back as soon as they get Hollywood rebuilt again.

Tuesday we went back on the air. Played at a Marine camp on the Mojave desert. This week I am going to an Air Force camp in Toronto, Canada, and from there to Fort Sheridan, near Chicago. Then Topeka, Kan. It's a long, complicated tour, but it's the only way a civilian can get chewing gum these days.

Skinnay Ennis is back with us after a hitch in the Army. Everybody wondered how Skinnay managed to stay in the Army so long and make all those marches, and it finally came out one night. The colonel caught him in the back room of the blood plasma bank, siphoning.

Sinatra has moved to a new place. He's rented a much larger incubator. You know Sinatra: That's Crosby . . . dehydrated version.

LOUIS BROMFIELD

New Ideas Are Needed To Avert Political Crisis

The nearer we come to the elections, the more the Democratic party in the national sense seems to resemble the Popular Front whose confusion and catch-all principles had such tragic results in the collapse of France.

In the first place, of all democracies the Republic of France resembles more nearly than any other our own, exactly as the individualism and political temperament of the French people resemble our own. The same fears, ideological confusion, political syncism and economic depression gave rise to the Popular Front in France and the New Deal in America.

Leon Blum, creator of the Popular Front, and Franklin D. Roosevelt share much the same background and many of the same traits. I use the present tense in the case of Blum with the knowledge that it has not yet been established whether he is still alive or was murdered in the German "Horror Factory" in Lublin.) Both belong to the same type of "rich liberal" whose activities have so often been costly to nations in every period of history—liberals who turned on their own class and espoused sentimentally the cause that Henry Wallace calls in our day "The Common Man." Mixed with the sentimentality and lack of hard experience there is always a glittering many-sided personality and a certain feminine sensibility and reaction.

The Popular Front was the same catch-all political dust-bin as the Democratic party became in Chicago in July. Both included certain, but not all of the elements of organized labor. Both included corrupt political bosses and long-established political machines, side by side with Communist and ultra radical elements. Both included the federal employes whom the French refer to scornfully as the "fonctionaires" and the mass of organization politicians who make a career of federal patronage. Both included certain unscrupulous reactionary elements.

All this hodge-podge was held together in both cases by the same political desperation. The philosophy of all the elements included was "stick together or fall."

The New Deal Democratic party, like the Popular Front, is riddled with foreign ideologies imported from abroad and both divided the country by setting class against class for political reasons. In both cases the extreme radical elements, were in a position to blackmail both party and leader, because their withdrawal meant political collapse for both party and leader.

The Popular Front story is now history. It divided France and produced a crop of self-interested traitors on both the Right and the Left. It filled France with fear and doubts, and it used those fears and doubts to divide the nation still further for the sake of political gain. It was riddled not so much by venal corruption as by bureaucracy, confusion, incompetency and greed for power. Its Communist and Radical elements used their power of political blackmail to force Blum into radical changes and reforms in which he did not believe and they wrecked both production and the national economy in France. It divided the nation into 30-odd million individuals each looking out for himself because he had no faith in government. In the end when the crisis came France collapsed.

With the New Deal Democratic party still in power, we are not yet at the final stage of collapse. God grant that we shall never reach it. It is still possible that we shall escape calamity, but in order to do so we shall need new blood, a new administration, new ideas in the American idiom rather than the muddled idealogies imported out of defeated Central Europe. Vigor is required and leadership upon a sounder basis than political wire-walking and compromise and day-by-day improvisations. A united party is needed rather than a catch-all dust-bin in which bitterly antagonistic elements are held together only in the hope of political spoils.

The truth is that we as a nation have come in on the final dying ripple of a wave of Germanic idealogies concerned with proletariats and totalitarianism which swept disastrously over Europe and has reached its final ebb here in this country. We are paying today a large part of the price of despairing Europe's experiments and adventures in totalitarianism and social and economic reform. It is so old a story that in an historical sense Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee has already become a reactionary organization. Many of the paternalistic, totalitarian, ideas of the radical groups here have already been rejected by Europe and Russia as both unworkable and destructive.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Watching His Step

Tom Dewey has been running a very serious political campaign on the long haul from New York to the northwest and now down to California, where we make the turn for home, but there are aspects of the trip which prove that the method by which the greatest free nation selects its presidents still calls for corn, comedy and emotion rather than the pure political judgment of the voter.

The nominnating conventions with which we begin these quadrennial conniptions, of course are, in their public manifestations, mainly displays of idiotic buffoonery in which the clowns are mechanically incited to yip and play the fool in spectacles that mock the purpose of the occasion while the managers do methodical business in their smoke-filled rooms.

The same inanity carries over, then, into the campaigns.

On this expedition, Mr. Dewey, at Valentine, Neb., was invited into two traps which might have cost him votes for reasons having nothing whatever to do with his character, ability, intelligence or political program. Had he been willing and less alert and wary, he might have been photographed both for the papers and the movies wearing (1) the traditional 10-gallon hat of the cowman and (B) the traditional Indian war-bonnet of dyed chicken feathers. The bearers of such gifts are proud and insistent representatives of sensitive people whose gifts and honors are not safely to be spurned but must be rejected or evaded with tact. The dullest imagination needs no prompting to conjure the effect on a newspaper or newsreel public of the spectacle of Mr. Dewey, sedate as he is and little given to antics, peering soberly from beneath either of these monstrosities and wearing his conventional business man's suit to heighten the absurdity. The Political Action Committee of the CIO-Communist front should be willing to pay a million dollars for such a scene because, being as we are, enough of us thereupon, with no consideration of the issues or debates, would turn against Mr. Dewey and take Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term and be glad to get him. Mr. Coolidge, whose sense of the ludicrous was stunted, did yield on some occasions and we saw him haying in overalls and trouting in boots while wearing a high linen collar and an apathetic expression. But that was a time when the alternative was a Wall street lawyer and we might have taken a flag-pole sitter by preference.

At every overnight stop along this route, Mrs. Dewey has been interviewed and the subject of every such audience has been her two, or three, the figure varies, nylon slips and her small and treasured store of stockings. These garments have flapped from the brass tailboard of their private car, strictly in a manner of speaking, of course, for several thousand miles and, for the rest, Mrs. Dewey has been asked to explain and has done so, how a woman can pack sufficient clothing for so long a journey. The answer has been that she selects combinations of costumes and really has brought little but has made that little seem a lot.

Limited by her reticence on political subject, the lady reporters have had a dull time of it and one may blow them a kiss for doing such girlish pieces with the material on hand. Yet the question sometimes arises in our own little set on board, just what possible bearing can this have on her husband's qualifications and what would be the effect if Mrs. Dewey sometime were to say that she wears a 24-button unionsuit? Or that it was nobody's business but her own. If there is a woman's vote, Mr. D. would lose the election on that issue alone and such trivialities as peace, jobs, labor and the re-establishment of representative government would go by default.

The fact that Mrs. Dewey must be along at all, is itself indicative. In what other nation, to say nothing of a large and successful one claiming the right and qualifications to admonish and correct other countries, would the nominee's wife have to go along at all? It is only a three-week tour and husbands and wives think nothing of longer separations, or, recognizing that Mrs. Dewey does help her husband with her counsel in private, why, in the absence of any political expression from her, should her nylons be political news?

There is, on such trips, a constant fear, amounting to dread, that the candidate, himself, speaking off the end of his tongue from the tailboard in some small city, or his wife, who might, conceivably, be the garrulous and stupid spouse of another Lincoln, will make some flippant or ill-considered remark that could destroy him utterly.

That we would reject a man because of a casual answer to a calculated question or because his wife erred in some remark, her manners or her dress is no less possible than absurd. We want him wise, impeccably righteous, domestic and kind, a little droll, moist with the dewy sweat of sentiment, happy in his home life and, imperatively a regular member of some church. And, with the exception of Mrs. Roosevelt, who is a phenomenon beyond understanding, his wife must be elaborately polite, restrained under goading and able to make news of her nylons.

GAULT MacGOWAN

Owes His Escape to Two French Women

This is a continuation of a series of articles by Gault MacGowan describing his capture by the Germans, his experiences as a prisoner, and his escape.

LONDON—(By Wireless)—Two French women, one blond and the other brunet, were driving a donkey cart along a country road through hilly, heavily wooded country in the department of the Marne when they saw a disreputable looking man approaching them across a field, evidently intending to accost them. They were not peasants, but young, married refugees from the German-occupied city of Chalons-sur-Marne. They drove gaily, but uneasily, the donkey cart borrowed from a farm where they had been staying.

"Who is this strange-looking type approaching us?" the young woman we will call Lucienne said to Suzanne. (These are not their real names, but they will do.)

"I wonder," said brunet Suzanne. "He looks to me like some Maquisard type. But what funny pantaloons he is wearing."

Lucienne giggled, and said: "They look more like pajamas to me. I hope he is respectable."

Their speculation ended in a frown as the stranger came out from the field onto the road, stopped them, then inquired smilingly the way to Chalons, which was behind them, and to Troyes, which was ahead. Suzanne just had heard that American forces were at Troyes, and she knew the Germans were at Chalons.

She was suspicious of this strange type, wearing a blue Basque beret and blue jersey above gray pajamas and black shoes, and carrying a chalk-striped jacket. His face was grimy and unshaved. He looked tired and spoke French with an accent she did not recognize, and obviously was a stranger in this countryside.

So Suzanne began to fire questions back, and she wondered aloud whether he was a Maquisard, a disguised Gestapo agent, or perhaps Italian—there was a large number of Italians wandering about, trying to escape German labor companies. Her suspicions seemed well founded when the stranger suddenly became tongue tied, his French failing him.

At this tense moment Lucienne began to giggle again, and Suzanne joined her.

"What strange pantaloons you are wearing, monsieur," Suzanne exclaimed. "They are not respectable. You will be arrested if you walk through our village like that."

The man then broke down and came clean with an explanation.

"I am an escaped American war correspondent, trying to rejoin our army," he said. "I jumped out of a prison train on the way to Germany last night. My pants were virtually torn off of me while I was crossing some barbed wire. Fortunately, I was wearing pajamas underneath, and they were untorn, or I would have been a sight. Anyway, pajamas are less conspicuous than American uniform trousers. So I threw away what was left of my uniform pants."

"Hush," Suzanne said. "You shouldn't talk about escaping. The village down the road where we stay is full of Germans. It's dangerous to speak so boldly around here. We ought to report you to the authorities."

"You are French women, yes?" the stranger asked.

"Oui, oui," Suzanne and Lucienne said emphatically.

"Then I know you will not do any such thing as report me," the man said. "That's why I told you the truth."

The two women considered this statement, looking at each other, while the man gazed anxiously up and down the road. Suddenly he seized the donkey's head, and began leading it forward. It was a common highway scene — two women and a cart loaded with firewood and a jaded looking Frenchman leading an absurd vehicle along; or so it seemed to the young German soldier cycling along the road.

The young German soldier was late in returning on a pass, probably, and he had no time to bother with these stupid clods. He pedaled by swiftly, anxious to rejoin his garrison, wondering no doubt what his feldwebel would say about his lateness.

"Quick! You must leave us," the young women said to the stranger as the German disappeared in the distance. They had been talking together volubly, and had made their decision.

"Go across these fields toward the back of the village," they said. "Those are our woods there. Hide in the middle of them, and we will come to talk to you."

About a mile away was the spire of a village church, a village water tower—like hundreds of other country villages. Farm buildings and cottages peeped out between the foliage of tall trees and bushes bathed in bright sunshine. The stranger took himself off rapidly in the indicated direction as the women whipped up their donkey.

It was about 10 o'clock. A few farmers were at work in the fields. It was harvest time, but they worked slowly, probably wondering whether their crops would go to Germany against this year. They gazed curiously as the stranger passed, but he did not look either to right or left, and they bent to their work again. Too much curiosity does not pay.

But some women picking beans looked longer than the men. Those pajama legs made the stranger self-conscious. These French women obviously were more observant than the men, perhaps, because they make, buy and mend their men's clothes; and pajamas are not for wear in country fields.

Never was a man more grateful for shadows than this stranger. He lost himself quickly in the wood, and lay behind bushes. He had chosen, luckily, a perfect spot beside a foot bridge.

A few minutes later Suzanne and an elderly woman came across the bridge, looking around them. The elderly woman carried a pair of pants over her arm. The stranger rose hurriedly. Within a few seconds he was decently garbed in farmer's overalls. Once more he felt like a respectable citizen. If you have never lost your pants in public, you can never know his feelings of relief.

Be one of the lucky 71 to get one of these $500 loans and pay back only $16.38 a month.

OTHER LOANS $50 to $1000

Of course, we still make other loans of $50 to $1,000. You can borrow $1,000 for a total cost of $60 with the loan repayable over a full year to make it easy. Master Loan Service makes more loans because it is easy, pleasant, and costs less here.

COMPARE COSTS

Make the comparison for yourself—go anywhere in town—and we DO mean ANYWHERE—take our charges on a $50 loan, a $100 loan, $200, $400, $500 or $1,000 loans. Compare the actual cost, and we mean EVERY charge that is made. For instance, we do not make you pay any investigation fee, nor make you buy some insurance from us, nor do we make you take, and charge you for, other services to get the loan. The interest charge is the ONLY charge we make. Now take the actual cost of a loan here to ANY other place in town, be it bank, loan company, loan service or any other kind of lending institution, and see for yourself that it costs you less total dollars to get a loan here than anywhere else considering the amount of money you get in cash and the actual total cost to you.

2 Other Choices on LOANS

1½% Borrow up to $300 with total cost of only 1½% a month on the unpaid balance. For instance, a $100 cash loan repayable in 10 months costs you $1.50 interest for the first month and only 15c interest the last month. Pay only for the time you use the money.

Divided Interest

You can get up to $300 cash at 1½% a month and divide the interest into equal payments if you know how long you want to take to repay the loan.

PAY OFF OTHER LOANS

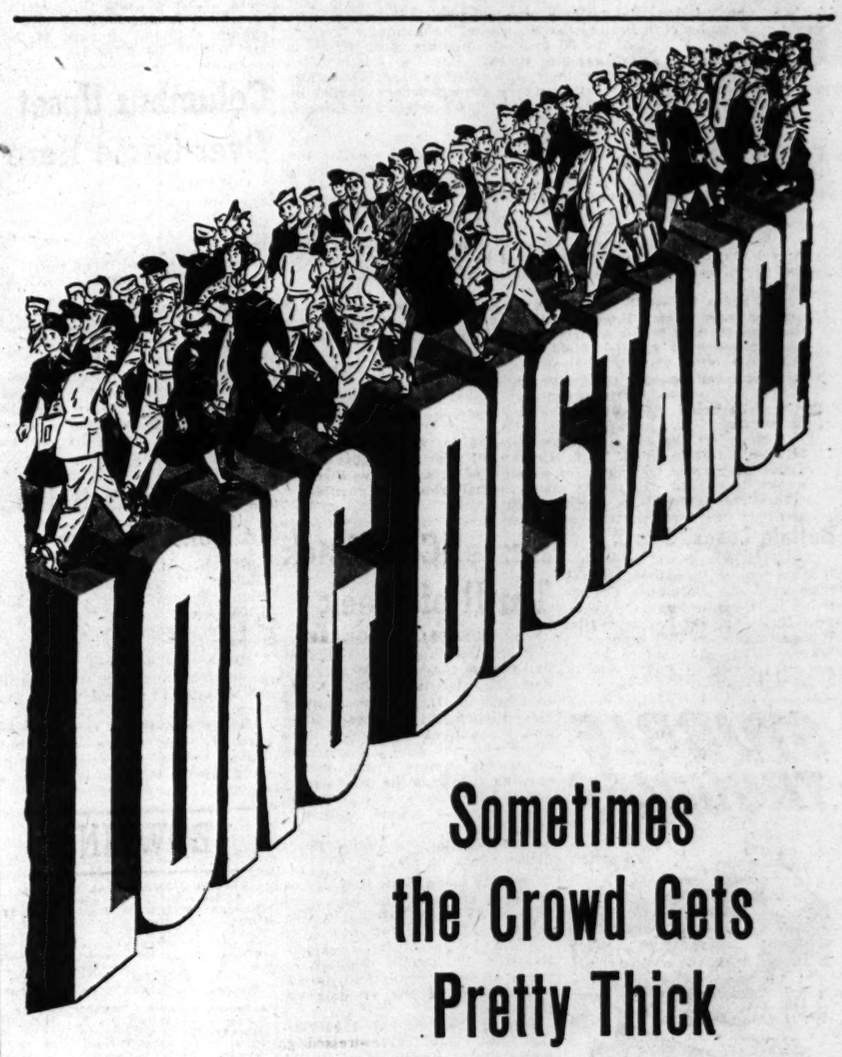

You can get money here to pay off other loans that may be costing you too much to carry or where payments are too big for you to carry. We can lend you extra money in addition to the amount required to pay your other loan or loans. Put all your borrowing together here at one low cost and on terms that make paying easier.

Deacons Threaten Georgia Two things are self-evident about the football teams of Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia at this time.

Georgia Tech is going to have more of a razzle-dazzle attack than last season, and probably will spring some of it on the Clemson Tigers Saturday at Grant Field. So far, nobody has shown up to take the place of Eddie Prokop. That's a large order. But, on the other hand, versatility of attack conceivably will make up for the absence of the All-America tailback.

What's self-evident about the Georgia Bulldogs is that Wake Forest's Deacons are hammering at the door. And what are the Bulldogs going to do about it? These Deacons aren't coming to Athens Friday night bearing tidings of good will. They've just upset North Carolina's Navy-loaded team, 7-0, confirming previous suspicions that they are carrying concealed weapons.

Wake Forest is a civilian outfit, just as Georgia is. Wake Forest may be no more advanced than the Bulldogs. But the fact is that Wake Forest has beaten North Carolina.

Wallace Butts personally scouted the game, as I understand it. He saw the pay-off blow, a touchdown stemming from the time-honored Statue of Liberty play.

It's going to be a whale of an opener—that Deacon-Bulldog clash Friday night at Sanford Field.

Staff Sergeant Hirsch Harold Hirsch had always dreamed of Georgia being in a Rose Bowl game and then, just a week before the Bulldogs left on the long haul to Pasadena, orders came through for Hirsch to report for Army service. And so instead of going to see the game, as he had planned, Hirsch went away to train to be a tail gunner.

Harold's just back from nine months in England. Thirty missions. Three enemy planes, two probables. No wounds, luckily. A unit citation, three clusters.

Harold's a bit shaky. He has experienced a lot of terrible things. Make no mistake about that. But he hasn't missed, in spirit, a season of football the Bulldogs have played.

SERGEANTS HIRSCH AND BROWN.

"The Stars and Stripes renders a great service. I was able to follow football through the weekly accounts of the fine service paper published in England. I read about one of the Bulldog fullbacks going back home because he didn't think he had been given enough good write-ups. I couldn't understand that."

(Just imagine an American tail gunner deserting because he figured he hadn't been given enough credit.)

When he first arrived in London S. Sgt. Hirsch encountered an old Georgia football captain, John McKnight, of Toccoa, in the Dorchester hotel. They had a great session together.

Sgt. Hirsch also had the pleasure of seeing Maj. Al Straton, Maj. Herbert Elsas, Capt. Dave Stein and one of my old Oglethorpe classmates and Stormy Petrel coworker, Paul Bacon, who's working for the Coca-Cola company in London. He saw Mae Turner, of Atlanta, in Ediborough, Scotland. She's with the Red Cross.

On one mission, Sgt. Hirsch narrowly missed getting shot down over the heart of Berlin. "It was close," he grinned. "Jerry's a good fighter. On 25 of the 30 missions, fighters came at us. I guess I was pretty scared a lot of times."

Sgt. Hirsch's crew named their ship "Murder, Inc.," but they were ordered to change it. I can't recall what they named it, then, but it was ridiculously on the sissy side. Sweet and Lovely. Something like that.

Cousin Sam Brown Sam Brown arrived at the office the same time S. Sgt. Hirsch did visiting Saturday. Sam was a whale of a football player for Georgia, back in the days of Catfish Smith, Red Leathers, Austie Downes, etc. Those were the days Georgia was making football life miserable for the Yales.

Sam's a sergeant now. He spent some time in Central America as a radio operator. In fact he was on the isthmus the day Georgia rallied to beat Alabama, 21 to 10, at Grant Field.

"I had a bet on the game and I had paid off on the third-quarter score, which I recall was 10 to 0. I had a heck of a time making that fellow settle with me afterwards," Sam, who's now stationed at Candler Field, recalled.

Sam's brother, Capt. Paul Brown, who went to Yale while Sam was playing for Georgia, is now in England.

Sgt. Brown was alternate captain at Georgia in '33, the year Graham Bachelor was captain. Brown and S. Sgt. Hirsch are first cousins.

They left the office together, headed for Grant Field to talk with Bobby Dodd. Sgt. Hirsch will visit in Clarksville, Tenn., his present residence, for a couple of days. He has three weeks' leave and will see as many football games as possible before reassignment to another post.

Buffalo Leads, 3 to 2

BALTIMORE, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Buffalo took a three-to-two series edge over the Baltimore Orioles today in the International League semi-final play-off when Walter Wilson outpitched Red Embree to take a 4-2 decision before a record local crowd of 32,913 fans in municipal stadium.

Russell Comeback Thrill of Week

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE

In the Decatur-Russell 12-12 football thriller played at Decatur Friday night statistics meant nothing to Coach R. L. Bowen's fighting eleven when the chips were down and the outlook unpleasant. The 80-yard sprint for a touchdown by speedy Jimmy Pruitt on the opening kickoff in the third period and the spectacular 68-yard touchdown run by Jimmy Moffett a few minutes later offset the superiority the Bulldogs displayed in all departments of play.

Decatur made eight first downs to Russell's three and had a net gain of 87 yards rushing to Russell's 85. The Bulldogs completed four of 13 passes for 75 yards. Russell's 12 aerials brought 34 yards on four completions, in addition to losing one by interception.

During the first half the Wildcats lost eight yards rushing, while the Bulldogs rolled up 51 yards. The two first downs Russell did get were over the heads of the powerful Decatur line on two spot passes to Bloodworth, stellar wingman. However, in the second half, the Russell forwards held their own and opened up a hole for Moffett to squeeze through before starting his spectacular sprint to pay dirt.

Should Russell and Decatur wind up their schedules undefeated this fall, resulting in a tie for the NGIC title, a playoff game between the two would be one of the highlight games of the year.

Packers Whip Bears, 42-28, In Last Period

Winners Score Twice In Last 5 Minutes To Wallop Rivals

GREEN BAY, Wis., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, scoring twice in the last five minutes of play, broke a deadlock and defeated the Chicago Bears, 42 to 28, in a wild, bruising National League football game today before 24,000.

The Packers completely dominated the play in the early stages and ran up an early lead of 28 to 0 in the first 18 minutes of play. Then they bogged down and the Bears, fighting all the way, gradually closed the gap scoring once late in the second period, once in third quarter and twice in the early stages of the final period to knot the score at 28-all.

A great 41-yard run around left end by Veteran Lou Brock proved to be the margin of victory. He got loose behind good interference and raced through the entire Bear secondary to score. An intercepted pass by Ted Fritson, and a run back of 50 yards in the closing seconds, proved to be the clincher.

Don Hutson, Green Bay's fleet end, added to his record by kicking six consecutive extra points, to run his string to 60 without a miss. It marked the 37th consecutive game in which he has scored.

Green Bay scoring: Touchdowns, L. Brock 2, Hutson, Comp, Fritsch 2. Points after touchdowns: Hutson 6, (placekick).

Rams' Aerials Beat Steelers

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Cleveland's Rams brought out an unheralded aerial attack that caught the Pittsburgh-Chicago combine flat-footed to hand the Steeler-Cardinal team a 30-28 defeat in a National Football League opener before 20,968 today. With Tom Collela doing the pitching, big Jim Benton, substitute left end, scored three of the counters and set up a fourth.

Willett Captures Red Cross Meet

Frank Willett, of Anniston, Ala., and Georgia Tech, made it two Atlanta Red Cross Tennis championships in a row when he bested Bill Lurie in the finals of the 1944 meet yesterday afternoon at the North Side Tennis Club in straight sets, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4.

The win also evened the score between Willett and Lurie. Lurie defeated Willett in the late rounds here in June.

In an exhibition doubles match, Welby Van Horn, who was formerly one of the nation's ranking stars before turning professional, and Jack Teagle, Southern singles champ, defeated Howard McCall and Willett, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Columbus Upset Over Game Here

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 25.—(AP) Plans were at a standstill here tonight for the Columbus High-Boys' High gridiron contest in Atlanta this weekend.

Coach Alex Truitt, of the Blue Devils, said unofficial reports from Atlanta claimed the contest, originally scheduled in February of this year, had been moved by Coach Shorty Doyal from Friday night to Thursday night.

The Blue Devil mentor added that he had received no notice from the Purple Hurricane and therefore could not make arrangements for his team's stay in Atlanta.

Haegg Beats Heino In Helsinki Race

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Gundar Haegg defeated Viljo Heino, Finnish track star, in the 5,000-meters race held at Helsinki stadium, running the distance in 14:24.4.

Heino was bothered by an injured foot and was a doubtful starter until 15 minutes before the race.

Haegg and Heino ran together virtually the entire race, but Haegg finished the stronger, nipping Heino by four-tenths of a second.

Tigers, Browns Both Win Games

DETROIT, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers clung to their one-game edge over the St. Louis Browns today by beating the Boston Red Sox for the fourth straight time, 9 to 5.

Hal Newhouser, permitting but one Boston hit in the first five innings, coasted to his 27th victory against nine defeats.

One of the biggest crowds ever to watch a single game in Briggs stadium—48,702 paid—saw the Tigers take their ninth victory in their last 10 starts and the 22d win in 27 games.

TOUCHDOWN CLUB TO MEET TODAY

It's kickoff time for the Atlanta Touchdown Club.

The first meeting of the season will be held today in the Civic room, Ansley, at 12:30.

A feature presentation will be the talkie movies of the Georgia Tech-Tulsa Sugar Bowl game. The Blue Network sports director, Harry Wismer, voice of the Sugar Bowl, narrates the action. Wismer, it will be recalled, was thoughtful enough to arrange a coast-to-coast hookup for the Touchdown Club's annual party last winter. He interviewed the celebrities present in the combined banquet hall at the Ansley.

Pres. Everett Strupper announces tht Army or Navy officers who have won letters at any college or university desiring affiliation with the Touchdown Club, are eligible and welcome at the Monday meetings.

Mrs. Payne Whitney Dies In New York

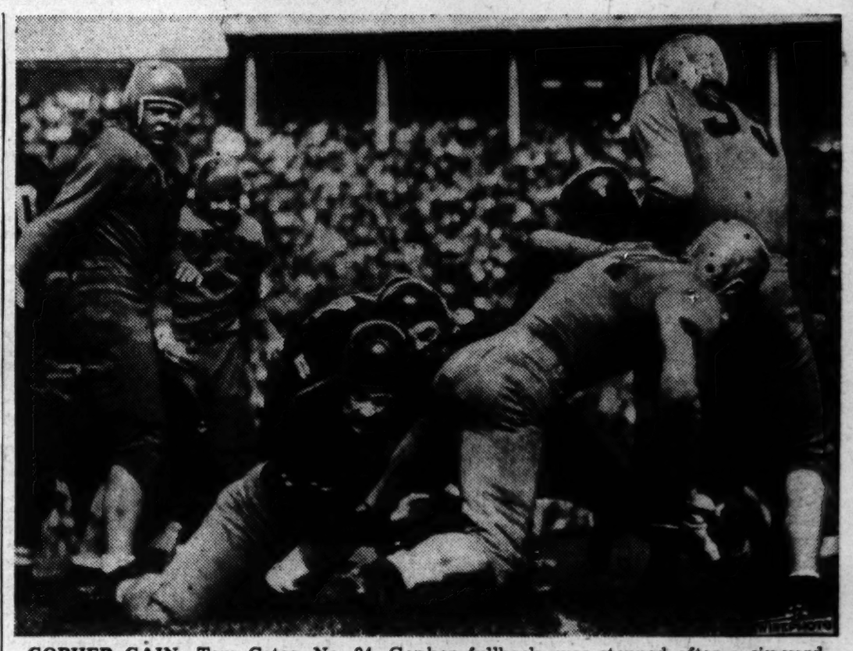

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, widow of Payne Whitney and daughter of the late John Hay, ambassador and Secretary of State, died today in a hospital.

One of America's wealthiest women, she managed the Greentree Stables and frequently was referred to as "the first lady of the turf."

Her son, Col. John Jay (Jock Whitney), recently escaped after being captured by the Germans in Italy. Mrs. Whitney managed his stables as well as those of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson.

Her husband died in 1927, leaving an estate valued at nearly $250,000,000.

Mrs. Whitney was the author of 12 books of verse.

GOPHER GAIN—Tom Cates, No. 84, Gopher fullback, was stopped after a six-yard gain in the course of the opening Minnesota drive in the Iowa Seahawk-Minnesota game at Minneapolis Saturday. George Stroheimer, No. 62, Seahawk center, made the tackle. Tom Reinardt, No. 95, Gopher tackle, is just ahead of the ball carrier, while coming into play from behind is Merlin Kispert, No. 33, Gopher quarterback.

Cloudbusters Beat Marines; Graham Stars

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Sept. 24. (AP)—The North Carolina Preflight Cloudbusters tore apart the Cherry Point Marines defenses for three touchdowns in the third period for a 27 to 14 victory before 8,000 fans today.

Trailing, 6-7, at halftime, Otto Graham, Northwestern star, spearheaded the three touchdown attack by setting up two and scoring one touchdown.

The Marines scored first when Halsall broke over tackle for five yards early in the second period and Lambert placekicked the extra point. Wilson ran off tackle in the same period for 10 yards for a Preflight touchdown but the extra point try was wide.

The big third period for the Preflighters saw Wilson pound over the five in two tries. Graham followed up with a 19-yard dash to the two and then went over. A pass put the ball on the Marine on and Aschenbrenner plunged over for the fourth Preflight touchdown.

Late in the fourth period Marcolini sparked a Marine drive to the Navy two, where Reece went over.

Cubans Play Final Tonight

The rubber game of the season's series between the the Black Crackers and the New York Cubans will be staged at Ponce de Leon park tonight at 8:30 o'clock, the Cubans squaring the count with a double victory yesterday afternoon by scores of 7-4 and 5-0.

An estimated 6,000 fans witnessed yesterday's twin bill at Ponce de Leon and an equal crowd is expected tonight for the final game of the series. The two clubs split in two games in the east earlier in this season, and the Black Crackers took the contests at Nashville and Knoxville this week. However, the Cubans knotted the series at three-all with their two victories yesterday.

Manager Felix Manning, of the Black Crackers, will take the mound tonight in an effort to win the series from the visiting club. The Cubans' manager has not announced his pitching choice for this important game.

Jack Murphy Wins Marietta Golf Title

Murphy carded a two-over-par 72 for the first 18 hole. He registered a 38 for the nine holes played in the afternoon.

Hertz Wins Bogey

Jennings Hertz won the blind bogey at the Legion Golf club Sunday, the winning number being 76. Three players tied for second, John Conyus with a 75 and Alfred Branch and E. L. Tiller with 77's.

FIREBALL FRANKIE STILL THROWS 'EM

The good right arm of Frankie Sinkwich which hurled so many passes for the 1942 Rose Bowl champions, the University of Georgia, has lost none of its cunning, as evidenced by Fireball Frankie's performance against the New York Giants in an exhibition pro game at Detroit Saturday night.

Sinkwich's team, the Detroit Lions, won a 23-0 victory, Frankie connecting for three touchdown passes and kicking three extra points. The other two points came on an automatic safety on a blocked Giants' punt.

Frankie's touchdown passes were good for 40, 42 and 14 yards, respectively, in addition to connecting for other long gains which set up scoring chances.

Jones Blind Bogey

Two players, Marvin Russell and Roy Brown, hit the winning number, 76, squarely on the head yesterday in the blind bogey at the Bobby Jones Golf club, Pro Billy Wilson reported.

Adair Edges Aces, 3 to 2

Adair Park downed Grant Park Aces by a 3 to 2 score in a Peach League game yesterday afternoon at Grant Park as Jack Snead prevailed over Thompson in a neat pitching duel.

Adair, the first half league champions, scored two runs in the first frame and then registered the winning tally in the eighth after the Aces had knotted the count with single markers in the fifth and sixth innings. McCormick led Adair at bat with two safeties.

Auto Lite won on a forfeit when Dortch failed to show up and the league-leading Rebels broke even with Atlantic Sheet Metal in a double-header, winning the first tilt, 4-0, and losing the nightcap, 10-9, to the metal nine.

Constitution Program Greatly Expanded

Everything from basketball to soccer will be included in The Constitution Greater Atlanta high school athletic program for 1944-45.

Weyman Tucker, North Fulton High school coach, is director of the vast program which gets under way October 24 with the holding of the volley ball tournament at Druid Hills High school and will close on May 11, 1945, with the staging of the big field day meet at North Fulton High's Dykes Field.

The program's basketball tournament, one of the most popular of the various basketball events, will be held at Fulton High, November 28. Soccer is scheduled for February 1 at Russell, while touch football play is booked for March 1 at Decatur. The softball tourney will also be played at Decatur on April 3. College Park will be host to the tennis tournament April 24.

The windup, as usual, will be the big Constitution banquet at which awards are presented to outstanding athletes. The tentative date for the banquet is May 21.

In addition to the various tournaments mentioned above, the individual schools will conduct their own tournaments in order to select representatives for the inter-scholastic competition.

Director Tucker states that there is widespread interest in the program and that plans have already been completed by all the schools for their intra-school events.

Finn Troops 'Ejecting' 100,000 Nazis, Austrians

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Four Finnish divisions, battling their former comrades-in-arms, have captured from the Germans part of Suomussalmi, in northeastern Finland, and are continuing to make progress in ejecting an estimated 100,000 Austrians and Nazis from the area, a Helsinki military communique said today.

A newspaper correspondent in the area said the Finnish high command was "hopeful" of completing the job within four weeks "without any help from the Russians."

Austrian troops which at one time comprised 80 per cent of the German garrison in the north, were reported unwilling to fight the Finns, and the Helsinki correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said "gunfire" had broken out between the Austrians and Germans.

At the same time the correspondent said "there is no doubt about the result" of the fighting between the Germans and the Finns.

"The Germans will succumb to the Finns," who are well acquainted with German methods and know the terrain, he declared.

At Kemo and Petsamo, two German strongholds on their northern defense, the Nazis were reported to have had on September 15 enough supplies for nine months, including a three-month beer supply, but since then they have been reported destroying part of them.

The Helsinki dispatch said that 100,000 Finns, 25,000 head of cattle and 8,000 horses had been evacuated from the battle area in northeastern Finland and moved south of the Ulz river or into Sweden.

Porkkola, near Helsinki, which the Finns leased to the Russians for 50 years under terms of the armistice, will be turned over to the Soviets formally next Friday.

cine in Atlanta in 1897 and was married to Miss Laurie Hendree Harrison, of Atlanta, on April 20, 1904.

In 1915 Dr. Hoke, with three others, founded the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children and served as chief surgeon of the hospital until about 1925. All of his services in this capacity were without compensation.

When the Warm Springs Foundation was organized in 1927, he became the medical director at the request of President Roosevelt. Dr. Hoke served in this capacity until he retired in 1935 due to ill health. Two years later he gave up active practice.

He was a 33d degree Mason and a member of Gate City Lodge No. 2, F. & A. M., Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, Yaarab Temple of the Shrine, American Medical Association, Medical Association of Georgia and American Orthopaedic Association.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two daughters.

Funeral will be held today at graveside in Raleigh, N. C.

American Legion, A. W. V. S., Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Civilian Defense—these are just a few of the other participating organizations.

Just prior to the parade tonight, first of the "briefing" sessions of the week will be held, participated in this time by the office buildings, business and county divisions of the campaign. Dr. Pierce Harris will be the principal speaker at this meeting, beginnting at 6:15 p. m. at the Ansley hotel. It will be dismissed in ample time for all attending to watch the parade.

On Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. the public employes division will gather for final instructions at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

There follows the formation of the parade as outlined by Benton and his corps of assistant marshals, Ted McAteer, M. C. Coleman, Foster Steward and Rich Paul.

West of Baker street—Motorcycle escort, Fort McPherson band, Engineers' float, WAC float, WAC jeeps, Lawson General Hospital band, Medical Depot.

West Peachtree at Baker—Marines, Marine Reserves, WAVES, Naval Air Station band, color guard.

North on West Peachtree at Baker—Red Cross, American Legion, Yaarab Temple.

North on West Peachtree at Porter place—Girl Scouts, Decatur Red Cross, Camp Fire Girls.

All these blocks will be cleared of traffic at 7 p. m., so that the formation many begin at 7:30 p. m. sharp and the parade move out along its traditional route at 8 p. m.

Capping Exercises Held For Piedmont Nurses

Stressing the great need for more well-qualified nurses, Lt. Col. Hugh Wood, recently returned from overseas service with the Emory Medical Unit, said: "No profession has a better record than nursing in wartime service."

railroad and public utility employes, most of the schoolteachers and most of the bankers and their employes. Until the people of these types—particularly the police—desert the Nazi cause, it is plain, according to all students of revolution, that no anti-Nazi revolution is possible within Germany.

Among the people who have remained in their towns and on their farms, it is plain they made no violent display of courage to defy the Nazis. The Nazis were too busy running away themselves to exercise much control. In Kornelimunster the Nazis seem to have tried to threaten some of those who remained at home, ordering them out at gun point, but not one was shot or arrested.

At Eilendorf, according to the new mayor, many people told the Nazis openly they refused to leave their homes, and the Nazis took the news docilely and went away. This happened, declared the mayor, because the Nazis were all drunk. The Nazis had made a house-to-house search and confiscated all the liquor on the grounds that when the Americans entered they would get drunk and shoot up the town. After that there was not a sober Nazi in Eilendorf for two days and they all went rolling off boozily together toward the Rhine.

MOVING ROMANCE

Among the Germans who remained, the typical reaction to the eloquent Nazi appeal to the Germans to come to their rescue was voiced by a 40-year-old man who with his pretty 31-year-old wife has been living one of the most moving romances encountered in a long time. She is Jewish; he is Ayran. They were married in 1935, after the advent of Hitler, but before the promulgation of the Nuremberg laws prohibiting such marriages.

All kinds of pressure were put on him to divorce her, but he refused. Their two children have been labeled officially "bastards," and have been treated officially as such. Friends have found it embarrassing to visit them, but the wife told me today that many have managed to do so nevertheless and "life has been nervous but not too bad."

The husband owned a large weaving mill in Aachen, but when the Germans started demobilizing some of their industries in 1942 his was the first to be closed. But a year later, when Allied bombings destroyed many of Aachen's factories, he was allowed to reopen his mill. Last month he was mobilized into the Todt organization.

RENDEZVOUS

When the American advance neared the German border the husband and wife made a rendezvous together. She and the children would hide in a lime quarry near Kornelimunster; he said he would desert and join them. When he read the passionate Nazi appeal he told himself: "Oh, now is the time for all good men to come to their senses," and he lit out and joined his family.

About half the townsfolk and nearly all the farmers seemed to have the same reaction when they read Goebbels' masterly exhortatory sentences.

"They must be really licked if they talk like this," these people thought, "and now is the time to climb off the bandwagon."

Nothing more, nothing less. These Germans didn't get any democratic religion. They just got a stroke of horse sense, and they had to be hit over the head with our artillery to get it, too.

Oberdorfer Named by Jewish Group

At the final session of the Conference of Jewish Centers, YMHAs and YWHAs of the South, yesterday at the Biltmore hotel, delegates completed the formation of a southern section of the National Jewish Welfare Board and elected Jules J. Paglin, of New Orleans, as president.

The delegates, representing 19 cities in the southern area, also elected Donald Oberdorfer, of Atlanta, as chairman of the board of directors which is composed of three representatives from each of the constituent members of the conference. Oberdorfer is also vice president of the National Jewish Welfare Board.

The southern section of the board covers North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Following are the vice presidents elected to assist Paglin: Ely Brockman, of Dallas; James L. Permutt, of Birmingham; R. W. Apte, of Tampa, Fla., and Emanuel Lewis, of Savannah. The treasurer is Leon Rittenberg, of Charleston.

Ex-Cobb Warden, 7 Others Seized In Gaming Raid

By DAVID SNELL
Constitution Staff Correspondent

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 24.—In a swift raid on a ranch house near here last night, Cobb county officers reported arresting Eli W. Garrison, former county prison warden and unsuccessful candidate for county commissioner, and seven other prominent citizens on gambling charges.

Garrison, said to be owner of the ranch, was released under two $500 bonds on charges of operating a gambling house and gambling, the sheriff's office reported.

The names of the seven others arrested were not released. However, they were reported free under $500 bond each.

Participating in the raid were Deputy Sheriffs Emmett Marler, Arthur Mitchell, Cecil Bullard and Lee Strickland, Cobb County Police Chief Esmer C. Ward and Patrolman A. Herren.

Cases against the eight will be heard at the November court term.

Strickland said the raid was planned after the sheriff's office had received numerous complaints about gambling at the ranch, located two miles south of Marietta on the new Atlanta highway.

Police officers suddenly appeared in every doorway and window of the ranch house, Strickland said, and found a poker game in progress in the basement. None of the alleged gamblers escaped, he added.

Garrison served as warden of the Cobb county prison from 1937 to 1940 and was defeated in the last election for county commissioner by George H. McMillan.

Solons Pick Ike To Do Tough Jobs

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two congressmen returning from France suggested today that Gen. Eisenhower be given "the toughest diplomatic post in the world" after the war to make use of his "proven qualities—ability to get along with all types of people, a shrewd appraisal of every situation and common sense."

Not that the supreme commander would want it, for Reps. Karl E. Mundt, Republican, South Dakota, and James P. Richards, Democrat, South Carolina, quoted him as saying that all he wanted to do when peace comes was to go back to Kansas, "sit on the bank of a creek and fish in the sun."

"We think he deserves whatever he wants after the war," they said in an interview, "but he has shown himself perhaps the best diplomat on the payroll and the country will need men like him to help in the difficult problems of the future."

Mundt said a good assignment for the general would be ambassador to Russia.

Neither knew whether Eisenhower was a Republican or a Democrat. In fact they asked him over lunch and drew only a grin in response.

Eisenhower's diplomacy had some recent tests, one of them involving the congressmen. When their group of nine recently protested they were being given the military brush-off in attempts to get to France he arranged the trip speedily.

Eleven Atlantans Injured In Wrecks Over Weekend

Eleven persons were injured, four seriously, in what police describe as one of the worst traffic weekends in many months.

Mrs. J. B. Treadwell, 34, of 962 Boulevard, N. E., and her daughter, Jimmie Nell, age 3, were admitted to Emory University hospital in serious condition as result of a collision on Memorial drive near Spence street.

Police reports said the Treadwell car was struck head-on by an auto driven by C. W. Durrell, 38, of 720 Berne street, S. W. Cases were booked against Durrell for drunk driving, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

J. B. Treadwell, 34, the husband, and two other children, Amy, age 2, and Eleanor, age 6, and two other passengers in the Treadwell car, A. P. Hale, 45, and S. W. Jackson, 45, of 478 Parkway drive, N. E., also were treated at Emory and dismissed.

Sgt. Emory C. York, 23, of Conley, was admitted to the Fort McPherson hospital after being knocked down by a car in front of 659 Peachtree street, N. E. Police listed the driver as Miss Ella Price, 30, of 119 West Benson street, who was charged with drunk driving—accident.

Evelyn Price, 43, Negro, of 409 Merritts avenue, N. E., was taken to Grady hospital with both legs broken and head injuries after being struck down by an auto at Georgia avenue and Reed street. Reports said the driver, William North, 50, Negro, was booked for drunk, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

Emmett Harvey, 32, Negro, of 126 Kennett street, sustained a broken foot and other injuries when the motorcycle he was riding sideswiped a street car in front of 326 Nelson street. Rema Barber, 35, Negro, of 507 Holland street, S. W., was critically injured when she stepped into the path of a Central of Georgia switch engine at Humphries street crossing.

2,000 Welcome Dr. Stanley Jones In First Sermon

By DR. THOMAS E. ELLIOTT

Nearly 2,000 persons assembled at Wesley Memorial Methodist church yesterday afternoon to hear Dr. E. Stanley Jones in his first sermon of a series of 20 to be delivered in Atlanta this week in a preaching mission sponsored by the Atlanta Methodist Ministers association.

Following the discourse, nearly one-half the congregation remained for an after-service. "The Christian Way Is the Way" was Dr. Jones' topic.

He spoke last night to the Glenn Memorial congregation at Emory University, and today at 12:30 p. m. will address the Rotary club meeting, with an evening service at Wesley Memorial church at 8 p. m. A song service tonight will be under the direction of John Hoffman and will start at 7:45 o'clock.

A special feature of the program outlined for Dr. Jones today is an address to Atlanta ministers, both white and Negro, of all denominations, at the Wesley Memorial church at 10:30 a. m.

Dr. Jones comes to Atlanta for a week's preaching mission representing the department of evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Up to this time he has conducted similar preaching missions in 22 key cities of the United States.

Prior to undertaking this national preaching mission, Dr. Jones for 37 years had dedicated himself to missionary evangelism in India, working particularly among the educated classes of that land.

Police at Hapeville Seeking Evangelist

Hapeville police are reported searching for the Rev. Hugh S. Wallace, an evangelist, who closed a 10-day revival meeting unexpectedly Friday and disappeared.

Police Chief T. W. Pendley said he understood that the minister suffered a nervous breakdown and that he had told friends he planned to go to Macon or Birmingham. The Rev. Mr. Wallace suffered a similar breakdown three years ago while conducting a revival in Hapeville and later was committed to the state hospital at Milledgeville, Pendley said he learned.

He is a former pastor of the Second Baptist church in Hapeville, and last spring conducted a revival service in East Point.

England Reflects GI Influence, Atlantan Says

By TINA RANSOM

S. Sgt. Harold Hirsch Jr. has made several trips to England in the last decade, but there is one he is not likely to confuse with the others—he will remember this, above all others, clearly and in detail.

For this particular "trip," which lasted 10 months, is the one from which he has just returned, and he spent his time as a tailgunner on a Flying Fortress, completing 30 missions, winning the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters.

Home on furlough now with his mother, Mrs. Harold Hirsch, of 118 Waverly way, N. E., Sgt. Hirsch recalls with some amusement the great change that has come over the English people since 1939, brought on in part, he admits, by the harrowing experiences of war, but in part, he insists, by the influence of the American G. I.

"Yes," he chuckled, "one little incident impressed me more than anything that happened to me the whole time—it was watching two English girls walking down the street singing 'Pistol Packin' Mama' at the top of their voices!"

ENGLISH WONDERFUL

"Those English people . . . well, they're wonderful. I have the greatest admiration and respect for them—the way they've courageously and cheerfully stood up under all they've undergone! I think one of the reasons they've been so magnificent is the tradition of centuries of bravery behind them. You see, tradition means more to the English than to any other people on the face of the earth."

"You'd think this robot blitz would be the last straw, but the people just stand on the street and watch them till they hear the motor cut off, then they run like the devil."

The Allied fliers, pointed out Hirsch, do not belittle their German opponents.

"We have great respect for German airmen—they are expert and they are brave, even after we had won great air superiority over them. German flyers are fanatical but not to the point of suicide, as we hear the Japs are."

SUSPENSE BAD

Toward the end of his 30 missions, the last of which he flew on D-day, Hirsch says the suspense was getting pretty heavy.

"On about the 23d mission, you begin sweating them out—well, the truth of the matter is, everybody is just plain scared—and I don't know one man who didn't become superstitious. You get to thinking over every little detail, and you have to have everything just like it was on the other missions.

"As for me, I wore the same clothes on all missions. Oh, I admit they were dirtier'n hell before I'd finished—I wasn't going to risk sending them to the laundry—but nothing in the world could have kept me from wearing them."

EXPERT IN FIELD

But the American Air Corps has something besides superstition to go on. Each man is a complete expert in his own field. No one has to tell him to learn his job thoroughly; he knows it backward and forward, applying himself to his task with an intensity he has never known before.

"Your gun," explained Hirsch, speaking for all gunners, "is your best friend. I can tell you, I knew every square inch of mine, and it was always spotlessly clean—always."

A graduate of the University of Georgia, Sgt. Hirsch entered the army in December, 1942, and won his wings at Pyote, Texas.

"London," reflected Hirsch wryly, getting up to leave, "is a great place, and I want to go back some day. But how it has changed . . ."

50ct. Debt Blamed In Atlanta Killing

An argument over a 50-cent debt was blamed by police for the only homicide reported over the weekend. Four persons were stabbed to death last weekend.

Tom Yancey, 26, Negro, of 132½ Chestnut street, N. E., was shot to death after demanding payment of the debt from Mary Goodwin, 32, Negro, of 132 Chestnut street. Radio Patrolmen J. E. McGuire and R. H. Anderson said. The Goodwin woman was arrested for "suspicion of murder," the officers said.

Lumber Output Off

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) July lumber production declined 6.7 per cent from June and was 9.6 per cent under July, 1943, the War Production Board announced today. The decline was attributed to shortages of manpower and logging equipment. Production in July totaled 2,843,765,000 board feet.

Pvt. Cunningham To Memorialize

Memorial services for Pvt. Alvin (Buck) P. Cunningham, of the Marine Corps, who was killed in action July 26 on Guam island, will be held Oct. 15 in Nashville, Tennessee.

His wife, Mrs. Austell Cunningham, of 355 Connally street, S. E., has been officially notified of his death by the War Department.

Besides his wife, other survivors are a daughter, Carolyn Joyce Cunningham; his mother, Mrs. T. C. Crunk, of Franklin, Tenn.; three sisters, Misses Rebecca, Nella Sue and Betty Jean Crunk; his father, McKinley Cunningham, of Detroit, Mich.; his grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Farmer, and several aunts and uncles.

Born at Nashville, he had been in the service for two years, of which 18 months were spent overseas. He received his training at Ocean Side and Camp Pendleton, California.

3 Atlantans To Go To War Ad Parley

Three Atlantans will represent the southeast in sessions of the War Advertising Council in Washington tomorrow and Wednesday. The sessions will concentrate on adjusting the council's program to the furious pace of war developments.

The representatives will be Tom Chris Allen, southern advertising manager for Life magazine, chairman of the southeastern branch of the War Advertising Council; C. K. Liller, of Liller, Neal & Battle, branch vice chairman, and Chess Lagomarsino, publicity director for Davison's and branch councillor.

Chinese Burned Out

CHUNGKING, Sept. 24.—(AP)—An estimated 20,000 Chinese were left homeless by a devastating fire which wiped out a congested slum area here last night near the Yangtse river waterfront.

Lions' Speaker

Dr. L. V. Howard, executive director of the agricultural and development board of Georgia, with headquarters at Athens, will be the speaker at the Buckhead Lions' club dinner at 7 p. m. today at Lakemoore.

Robert Clay Dies On French Front

Relatives in Atlanta received news from the War Department yesterday of the death in France on September 9 of Pfc. Robert W. Clay, 24, whose wife, Mrs. Mary Clay, lives at 2654 Cascade road, N. W. Clay received fatal wounds, according to the telegram, on Sept. 8, while engaged in action on the French front.

Entering the Army in May, 1943, Clay was assigned to the infantry. He went overseas in May, 1944, and landed in France some months ago.

Born in Atlanta, Clay attended public schools here and later was graduated from Russell High School. Prior to his entry into the Army, he was an employe of the Great Southern Trucking Corporation.

He was married in June, 1938. Mr. and Mrs. Clay have a small son, Danny, 2 years old.

Besides his wife and son, Clay is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ida Clay, who lives on Childress road, N. W., and by two brothers, Wilton and Gene, who also live at the Childress road address.

Genuine leopard trims this three-quarter casual topper and makes the flat and squarish muff so smart with it. The coat is the softest of greens, cut with wide square shoulders. The tuxedo front has unusually wide flanges of the leopard, which also forms a rolled collar effect. The coat is $155.95, which includes tax; the muff is the same price. The softly draped hat of green is trimmed with one large jeweled pin Price of the hat is $24.50. Miss Melba Harding is the model.

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Fear Causes Greatest Misery

(Fear causes more human misery and unhappiness than cancer or any other medical ailment. But in the final analysis, you must cure yourself of fear. Follow the rules advocated for Draper's dilemma.)

CASE D-261: Draper M., aged 17, is a college student.

"I have a terrible complex about street cars," he admitted one afternoon after class.

"Since I live at home and must come to school each morning from a distance of five miles, it is necessaary to use the street car.

"But I have some unaccountable fear of them. It is literally torture for me to go inside and sit on one of the seats.

"So I stand on the platform with the conductor, even on the worst winter days. Dr. Crane, am I crazy or what is wrong with me?"

DIAGNOSIS

Fear causes more human misery than cancer or any other organic ailment.

In fact, the fear of cancer diminishes the happiness of tens of millions of Americans who will probably never have cancer.

But they worry and fret and otherwise lessen their enjoyment of life, simply because they permit themselves to become slaves of this emotion.

Draper has a fear of streetcars. Hundreds of you readers write to me complaining of similar fears, but yours may pertain to trains or to going shopping alone, or to making a speech or playing a musical instrument before a crowd.

Never surrender to these foolish types of fears that cannot be supporter by logic. Instead, enshrine your brain as the captive and let your emotions serve as the crew. But never permit mutiny to occur!

HOW TO CONQUER FEARS

Draper had become car sick about 10 years earlier after a trip to a carnival where he had gorged on soda pop, hot dogs, and other nicknacks. He couldn't get off the car in time to prevent his vomiting.

The social humiliation thus "branded" this shy boy, so he now is being hampered in his proper use of street cars as a means of getting to college each morning.

To cure these silly fears, it is helpful to think back to their origin, but even if you cannot remember a terrifying experience in early childhood, the procedure is otherwise the same.

Second, reassure yourself by realizing that literally thousands of intelligent people have the same type of fear as yourself. If you are a victim of stuttering, for instance, just recall that Demosthenes and Moses, as well as the King of England and Churchill are in the same boat with you.

Third, boldly face your fear and go out of your way to meet your bugaboo. Don't flee from it, but resolutely attack! Wage an offensive campaign.

ATTACK YOUR FEARS

I advised Draper to go into the middle of the street car and take a seat. Then when his heart begins to pound wildly, he can partially calm himself by doing something that will divert his attention.

He should count his pulse for one minute, then rest 60 seconds and repeat the process. Each pulse rate should be recorded on a little card.

For variation, he can count his respiration rate, or see how long he can hold his breath. Or he can sketch the noses or ears of the people around him.

Anything that diverts his attention and utilizes his mind, will help free himself from his fear. Send for my bulletin, "How To Control the Emotions," enclosing a three-cent stamped envelope, plus a dime.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Exercise Makes Your Housework Seem Easier

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

We are assured, on all sides that after the war, housework is going to be a breeze. Dust is to be gone with a whirl, cleaning can all be done by pressing a button and even dish washing is to be mechanical. I hope it all comes true. Then all housewives can keep streamlined. They will have ample time to take a few corrective exercises.

Before anyone argues that housework is all the exercise a woman needs, does it keep the average figure trim, or slim in the middle? If housework were exercise for the important muscles, then all housewives would have a neat and tidy waist, a streamlined midriff and a hipline that measured two, or at the most three inches larger than the bust.

I go on about women keeping beautiful figures, but what I'm really interested in is health. And I go on record as saying that women who are normal weight and streamlined are healthier! And they are apt to be happier, too.

Housework mostly uses the same muscles over and over, the feet, the legs, the hands and the arms. But it does not effectively use the big middle muscles and it's the tone of these muscles that are important to health, as well as the figure.

I can't promise you that taking regular exercise will make housework a joy, but a good set will keep your figure and release new energy, and make work seem easier!

Here is the set that will do what housework doesn't!

FOR THE WAIST AND TUMMY

Sit on the floor with the legs straight out and as wide apart as possible. Sit straight, pulling up with the stomach muscles. Hold arms out at sides, shoulder level.

Movement: Holding the up-pull, twirl at the waist, touching the fingers of the right hand to the outstretched left toes. Back to position, twirl in the opposite direction. Repeat 12 times. Relax.

Movement: Lying on back on floor, with knees up, soles of feet on floor.

Movement: Pull up sharply with the lower abdominal muscles, keep knees together, twist vigorously at waist and touch thigh to floor at one side. Come back to position and again twisting vigorously, lower to other side. Exercise slowly, center action on muscles of waist and abdomen. Repeat 10 times, later 20.

Just those two exercises are enough as a starter.

ON THE AIR

By PAUL JONES

Lily Pons will reveal one of the most heartwarming stories to come out of the entertainment world in connection with the World War when she is guest soloist on the Telephone Hour at 8 p. m. today over WSB.

At that time, Miss Pons will perform for the first time ever, a composition titled "The Song of a Young Iranian Girl" and behind this song is the following story:

"When the colorful singer and her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, were overseas on a USO tour for the armed forces, she appeared before a battalion of sunbaked soldiers in Teheran. One of these was a Russian, the composer of the now famous "In the Meadow," and so impressed was he with her voice, that he sat right down and wrote a song especially for her. Miss Pons brought it back to this country, had it arranged and, with special permission from the author, will introduce it for the first time anywhere when she performs it to the accompaniment of Donald Voorhees and the 57-piece Bell symphonic orchestra.

In addition to this new composition, Miss Pons will sing two other numbers, the bell song from "Lakme" and a Noel Coward number, "I'll Follow My Secret Heart."

Dick Powell and Linda Darnell will recreate their original screen roles, and Frank Craven will play the leading supporting role in an adaptation of "It Happened Tomorrow" on the "Screen Guild Players" program to be heard at 9 p. m. today over WGST.

Powell plays the role of a young newspaper reporter who by a quirk of fate is enabled to see the next day's headlines before the news has happened, and thus tips off the police about pending crime. He tries to capitalize on his advance knowledge by betting on horses destined to win. Suddenly he reads about his own death in the still-unpublished paper . . . and the climax descends swiftly.

Lucille Ball, Don Ameche and Jack Carson are the leading players of "Lucky Partners," which Cecil B. DeMille presents on the "Radio Theater" at 8 p. m. today over WGST.

"Lucky Partners" is the gay story of two people who split a sweepstakes ticket, and what happens to them before, during and after the sweepstakes race is run.

MY DAY. . . . By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Friday—Beginning September 24, all the religious communities of America, regardless of faith or denomination, will co-operate with other local service organizations in a drive for the emergency collection of clothing for Europe.

As each new country is liberated, the military occupation must be supplemented by the governments of the liberated lands and by the United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Administration set up by the 44 United Nations. With winter coming on, there will be a great need for warm clothing in all these countries; and so this collection has been instituted in the hope of sending 15,000,000 pounds of clothing to be distributed wherever the need is greatest.

Dr. Leslie B. Moss, executive secretary of the church committee on overseas relief and reconstruction, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, reported 120,593 churches, representing 21 Protestant denominations, are co-operating in this collection. Archbishop Mooney, chairman of the board of trustees, war relief services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, reported that 16,000 Catholic charities have responded to the appeal. And Mrs. Joseph M. Welt, president of the National Council of Jewish Women, reported 3,728 temples and synagogues have pledged full cooperation.

The articles urgently needed for both winter and summer wear are infants' clothing, especially knit goods; men's and boys' clothing, including work clothes and overalls; women's and girls' clothes, and blankets, sheets, pillow cases and quilts. This list would seem to give all of us a chance to donate something.

A violent thunderstorm last evening made it impossible to hear anything over the radio. This is always disappointing when speeches are being made during a campaign. I read both Gov. Dewey's and Vice President Wallace's speeches today, and there is one thought in the latter's speech which I think we should emphasize.

"There shall never be a return to the normalcy of yesteryear—to normalcy for the few and subnormalcy for the many," the vice president said. "We welcome—yes, we shall fight for something we have never had—the normalcy of the good life for everybody."

If we learned nothing else after the last war, we must have learned one thing—there is never any return to conditions of the past. We must be prepared to meet new conditions in new ways.

Dr. Brady

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Have you a pamphlet on thumb sucking? Probably the child's father makes the child nervous by constantly picking on him at his meals. (Mrs. G. E.)

Answer—If a child eats at table with rest of family the child should be required to remain at table until the rest of the family have finished eating. If the child prefers to gobble down his meal in a hurry, all right. In time the child will learn that he may as well take his time. It is always bad for digestion, bad, for everybody's morale or "nerves" if you prefer that term, and bad for the child's character development to fuss, criticise, scold, try to compel the child to eat anything he does not want. For pamphlet on Thumb Sucking send stamped envelope bearing your address. Do not send a clipping.

PIMPLES

Please tell me if chocolate causes pimples. I have what the doctor calls acne, and he said chocolate may cause it. (Miss W. J.)

Answer—Some physicians seem to think so. We'll have a talk about it here presently. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Blackheads and Pimples.

FREDERICK C. OTHMAN Reports:

Wartime Bathing Suits Problem for Williams

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 24.—(UP). The subject today is bathing suits and, of course, what goes into 'em—and when the what is Esther Williams what more could you ask?

That sentence indicates Miss Williams in a bathing suit the color of a peach is a sight to see and also that Othman doesn't know beans about English grammar. He does know about Miss Williams and her bathing suits. He asked her.

She is the star of a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movie called "The Thrill of a Romance" and this morning she stood on the board beside such a swimming pool as nobody ever saw before and dived in. She came out a few minutes later, looking something like a female in a pinkish mother hubbard.

Every time she jumps in the drink, an emergency results. That's the fault of the wartime bathing suit manufacturers. Take that peach-colored job.

"It isn't peach-colored," Miss Williams reported. "It is salmon-colored."

This statement caused Lauritz Melchior, the grand opera star, making his debut in pictures, to observe that she resembled a goldfish. Miss Williams ignored him and continued her lecture on bathing costumes.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has been worrying about her bathing suits these many months, tailoring them to order and building them of such materials as parachute cloth, genuine satin, and waterproof sequins. None of these materials have worked out so well. Elasticized cloth is the only proper material to make Miss Williams look like all the other girls who want to look like Miss Williams.

"And look at it," she said, wringing out the hem. "Once in the water and it stretches and goes out of shape and gets wrinkles and before I go in again I have to change it."

She has three salmon bathing suits, exactly alike. Two she swims in, with one being pressed on the board while the other is being pressed on her. The third bathing suit doesn't go near the water. Miss Williams wears it for the dry sequences.

Way back when she was one of the fastest swimmers in the world, she wore bathing caps to keep her hair dry. When she first tried out in Billy Rose's swimming pool for a part in his aquacade, she wore her bathing cap. Rose told her she looked like something the dog brought in. She abandoned the cap and hasn't worn one since and this, in view of the absence of rubber bathing caps, has been a good thing.

"Except that swimming without a cap all the time is very hard on the hair," Miss Williams reported. "Then there is the problem of decoration. Take these. You take 'em."

She handed over a fist-full of mushy salmon-colored material, which had been imitation daisies in her hair until the moment of her impact with the water. They were covered with waterproof wax, but they disintegrated anyway. Came a hairdresser to replace the daisies. Every time Miss Williams dives into the water, she has to have a new hairdress.

All this adds up to a nuisance, but Miss W. likes to swim anyhow. Director Richard Thorpe had her in the pool teaching her co-star, Van Johnson, how to swim. He already knew how to swim, but teaching him was part of the plot.

So she taught him and it did look easy and Miss Williams said she thought that anybody who watched the picture carefully probably would learn how to swim, just sitting there in his loge seat. That's what she thinks.

I wouldn't learn any such thing. I'd be too busy worrying about those triplicate bathing suits.

A Piping Hot, Fluffy Muffin Fits Well Into Any Menu Plan

By SALLY SAVER

A clever homemaker is probably eager to add a versatile muffins recipe to her collection, for nothing picks up a meal as much as the right sort of bread. A piping hot, fluffy muffin fits well into any menu plan and makes the simplest meal seem important. Following is a standard muffin recipe with variations. Add to your file for frequene use this winter.

STANDARD MUFFIN RECIPE

2 Cups sifted enriched flour.
3 Teaspoons baking powder.
½ Teaspoon salt.
2 Tablespoons sugar.
1 Egg.
1 Cup milk.
2 Tablespoons melted shortening.

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg and add milk and melted shortening. Add egg mixture to flour mixture stirring only until flour is moistened. Fill greased muffin pans half to two-thirds full. Bake in moderately hot oven, 425 degrees, 20 minutes. Makes 12 medium-sized muffins.

Variations on the Basis Muffins Recipe

1. Berry muffins: Add 1 cup blueberries drained (or any other berry), to egg mixture of standard recipe. Add this to flour mixture, proceeding the same as for plain muffins.

2. Apple muffins: Add ¼ teaspoon cinnamon to flour mixture. Increase shortening to four tablespoons, and add one cup finely chopped apples to egg mixture.

3. Raisin muffins: Add ½ cup raisins; increase sugar to three tablespoons and shortening to five tablespoons.

4. Nut muffins: Add ½ cup chopped nut meats to standard recipe, putting a nut meat on top of each muffin before baking. Add nuts to flour mixture.

5. Bacon muffins: (These go well will vegetable salad) Mix standard muffins. Before placing them in oven, sprinkle tops with finely chopped uncooked bacon. About three strips of thinly sliced bacon is right.

Panhellenic Sororities Release First Pledge News

By JACQUELINE THIESEN

After a gay and hectic day on Saturday, the high school belles made the all-important decision yesterday and pledged their allegiance to the sorority of their choice, the first announcement of their decision being made today. Rushing having been curtailed during war times, only one day was set aside as "rush day," which gave the sororities one last try for the girls of their choice. The high school Panhellenic council is composed of Pi Pi, Phi Pi, O. B. K., and Sigma Delta.

The Pi is entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Irene Adair in honor of the girls who pledged tto their sorority. The hostesses were Nancy Jagels and Beess Lundeen. The pledges include Olga Turner, Jackie Mathews, Elizabeth Nillican, Joan Broadnax, Peggy Wilkins, Betty Wilson, Rebecca Cowan, Joy Wicker, Carolyn Towe, Miriam Conner, Eleanor Ryn, Kitty Warren, Nancy Gower, Nancy Starr, Jean McClellan, Gloria Gleason, Olivia Traywick, Jeannie Miller, Katrina Alford, Marion Persons, Catherine Blanchard, Jean Martin, Bonita Tilly, Nancy McClung.

The Phi Pis boast that seven of the eight girls who received bids to three sororities selected Phi Pi as their choice. The eighth girl pledged her allegiance to Pi Pi. The following girls will be members of the Phi Pi club: Joan Coart, Betty Jinks, Barbara Dennis, Ann Goodwyn, Jackie Lowe, Joan Lowman, Ann Sturgis, Callie Huger, Mildrede Brown, Wingfield Ellis, Bettw Taylor, Mimi Davis, Betty Hitz, Nono Ghiles, Mary Haverty, Anne Arkwright, Martha Evans, Barbara Hirsch, Lillian Powell, Poanne Merritt, Mary Budd, Jane Dickinson, Fay Sheffield, Frances King, Frances Smith, Mary Elizabeth Reck, Kitty Poole, Mary Helen Harrison, Beulah Reeves, Winifred Shackelford, Helen Hopkins, Sue Davis, Cecil Maddox, Dot Daniels, Kay Randall, Helen Knox and Martha Sibley.

The girls who will answer the call of Sigma Delta include: Bootsie Hendley, Anne Blakley, Sally Freeman, Jo Lane Cheves, Barbara Black, Mary Manning, Anne Green, Celile Mozley, Pat Lee Masters, Mary Dell Morgan, Joanne Syfan, Peggy Fowley, Joan Gunning, Betty Plumber, Betty Macon, Corinne Carpenter, Barbara Murphy, Joanne Brady, Winkie Forbes, Sara Duggan, Dot Wilson, Jane O'Connor, Pat O'Connor and Francis Porcher.

MRS. EDWIN ARTHUR McQUATERS, of Orlando, Fla.

Mrs. McQuaters, the former Miss Helen E. McKenzie, of this city, is visiting her relatives, Captain and Mrs. John M. Harris and Miss Miriam E. Harris, in Hapeville. She has also been the guest of Mrs. James Taylor Cagle and Miss Mattie Mae Wright. She spent last week in Athens as the guest of her mother, Mrs. W. F. McKenzie, and her brother and sister, Professor and Mrs. Frank William Fitch.

Miss Margaret Lukens Wed To Barron Withers at Church

Miss Margaret Lukens became the bride yesterday of W. Barron Withers at a beautiful ceremony, taking place at the Little Chapel of Glenn Memorial church at 4 p. m. Rev. W. F. Draper, of Mansfield, La., brother-in-law of the groom, performed the ceremony, and Charles Landis was organist.

Tommy Lukens and Carl Voyles, of Durham, N. C., were ushers, and Lloyd C. Withers Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., was best man.

Miss Jeanne Lukens was her sister's only attendant. She wore a frock of pale green satin, made with heart-shaped neckline and small covered buttons which extended down the back to the waistline. She carried a nosegay of Dresden-tinted blossoms.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Thomas H. Lukens, wore ivory slipper satin, made with heart-shaped neck, long sleeves and built-in train. Her veil was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms and she wore two handsome seed pearl clips. Her flowers were bride's roses and flesh-colored carnations.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained the immediate family and out-of-town guests at a reception at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

After a wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Withers will reside in the Erwin Apartments, Durham, N. C., during the continuation of the groom's medical training at Duke University from which institution he will be graduated in 1945.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Lloyd C. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Withers Jr., of Charlotte, N. C.; Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Draper, of Mansfield, La.; Carl Voyles, Fred Taylor and Charles Lewis, of Duke Medical School, Durham, N. C.

School Children To Organize Junior Garden Clubs Here

Under the aegis of the Garden Club of Georgia, Mrs. Laurie D Webster, chairman of junior clubs, aided by Mrs. Charles F. Whitner Jr., as co-chairman, has launched a program for organizing the school children of Atlanta into garden clubs. The purpose of the organization is to encourage the love and knowledge of gardening, and the organizing and maintenance of Junior Hospital Flower Service for the children's wards of hospitals. Any school in Georgia is eligible to organize a club, and particulars may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Webster, 1371 Peachtree street, or Mrs. Whitner, 160 The Prado, N. E., Atlanta.

The first junior club to organize in Atlanta is the Spring Garden Club, the organization meeting to be held at Spring Street school at 9:30 a. m. on Thursday. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Whitner will talk on the plans of the club for the year and introduce the officers.

Miss Bessie Dunwoody, principal of the school, will act as director, and the officers will include Mrs. John S. Whitner, president; Mrs. Troy Bivings Jr., first vice president; Mrs. Ellis Arnall, second vice president; Mrs. Irving Schweppe, secretary; Mrs. Carlton Hughs, chairman of junior hospital service day, assisted by Mrs. Fred Patterson, co-chairman; Mrs. G. A. Pirkle, flower show chairman, assisted by Mrs. Norman Cooledge, co-chairman. Other chairmen will be announced later.

The October meeting will inaugurate Junior Hospital Service day, and flowers to be brought by the children will be taken to Egleston hospital. Other hospitals to be supplied with flowers for the children's wards are Grady, Crippled Children's Home, Georgia Baptist, Piedmont, Scottish Rite and Emory hospitals.

Meetings of the junior clubs will be held every other month, beginning in September, and alternating with visits to hospitals on Junior Hospital Service day. At the end of the school year, certificates will be given to the children who have learned the answers to a certain group of questions pertaining to flowers, vegetables, and trees. Prominent speakers on these subjects will be presented at each meeting.

Atlanta U. D. C. Meets

Atlanta Paper Company Now Presents Latest Specialties Division

Offers Stocks of Notions, School Supplies, Toys

The establishment of fine new warehouse and showroom facilities for large-scale distribution of merchandise to variety stores, drug and department stores, gift shops, hardware and grocery stores is announced this week by Atlanta Paper Company Specialties Division.

Location of the new headquarters is at 21 Haynes street, N. W., in the A. B. & C. Terminal warehouse. This announcement followed the establishment of the specialties division as a separate unit from Atlanta Paper Company's other operations in order to enlarge and concentrate upon merchandise items for wholesalers and retailers, and to supply merchandise in any quantities promptly and efficiently.

In charge of this new division are Frank Olver and J. B. Fatman, veteran Atlanta Paper Company executives. Mr. Olver will supervise sales and merchandising. Mr. Fatman will handle administration and warehouse management. On the sales staff are Al Walker, Guy Tumlin, Mrs. Nell Bollinger and Joe Connolly—all well known in the field of merchandising and selling.

Items offered for sale through APACO Specialties Division are varied and many. A trip through the spacious display rooms is like a visit to a merchant's paradise—especially in this day of "hard-to-get" supplies. Stocks seen on display include school and home supplies, pencils, binders, scrap books, satchels, flashlights, brushes, buttons, mirrors, mops, brooms, smoking accessories billfolders, handkerchiefs, aprons, napkins, albums, fly swatters, toys, games, paper specialties of every type, wood novelties, hundreds of drug supplies, notions, hardware, department store and grocery store items.

Through its long history of 76 years in business, Atlanta Paper Company has dealt in specialties along with its manufacture and distribution of corrugated shipping containers, folding boxes and other paper products. New emphasis on APACO Specialties now, at a come source of buying these items.

APACO Specialties are also offered to merchants outside of the time when many merchants throughout the south need business expansion to meet economic transitions ahead, provides a wel- Atlanta area through Atlanta Paper Company branches: Augusta Paper Company, Augusta, Ga.; Bibb Paper Company, Macon, Ga.; Georgia-Alabama Paper Company, Columbus, Ga.; and Volunteer State Paper Company, Knoxville, Tenn. Two other associate companies of Atlanta Paper Company are Little Rock Paper Company at Little Rock, Ark., and Memphis Paper Company at Memphis, Tenn.

Display rooms at the A. B. & C. warehouse are now open. Merchants are cordially invited to visit this convenient Haynes street location to inspect APACO Specialties.

NEW DISPLAY ROOM FOR APACO SPECIALTIES—As a convenience to local merchants and as headquarters for out-of-town buyers who come into Atlanta to purchase merchandise specialties, this attractive display room has been installed in the Atlanta Paper Company specialties division warehouse at 21 Haynes street, N. W., near Terminal Station. A few of the members of the APACO staff are pictured in the group. They are, bottom row: Misses Julia Shearer, Thelma Musinsky, Dorothy Smith, Barbara Parham, Alice Jones and Marguerite Botters. Top row: Joseph B. Fatman, Roy Baker, Joe Connolly and Al Walker. APACO specialties are now being distributed into department stores, hardware stores, variety and grocery stores, jewelry and gift shops.

Pacific Mutual's Five Qualifiers For Big Tree Club

The Big Tree Club year of 1944, honor organization of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, which closed on July 15, was the gainer of five qualifiers from the Georgia agency, of which Emory L. Jenks is the general agent.

In the Georgia Agency, the following qualified: M. Oliver Nix, Paul Burt, Arthur Lippold, Ralph W. Williams, of Atlanta, and L. H. Turner, of Augusta.

Among the Big Tree qualifiers for the Pacific Mutual, 82 were newcomers—that is, they entered the ranks during the past year.

This unusual record was accomplished by the sale of the Pacific Mutual New and Unusual Savings Plan, which is one contract that not only saves money for the insured, but pays up to $200 per month every time the policyholder is sick or hurt.

The Pacific Mutual has been located in Georgia for 54 years, selling life, accident and health insurance. Mr. Jenks, general agent in Atlanta for 11 years, and who has been in the war service for two years, has returned and is again actively at the helm of his agency. With his 22 years' experience as a background, he has lately made a wide trip throughout the whole country, and has been especially interested in the manner in which the Pacific Mutual New and Unusual Savings Plan has taken a hold on insurance buyers.

This New and Unusual Savings Plan has three important features. Mr. Jenks explains them in this way:

(1) "It keeps right on saving your money.

(2) "It pays you a very substantial monthly income for sickness or accident, from the first day.

(3) "No matter how much it pays you when sick or hurt, you don't have to pay it back to maintain your savings. I'm sure you'll agree this IS something new and unusual."

This new plan, it is claimed, affords all the economic protection of life insurance plus income protection when disabling sickness or accident occurs that might otherwise break down the life insurance program. As one policy owner expresses it, "My new and unusual savings plan is protected protection for my future."

When one realizes that 17 out of every 20 persons are incapacitated by sickness or accident at some period during a year's time, the advantage of having "protected protection" becomes strikingly obvious.

Mr. Jenks is opening up this new department in the Atlanta office, and has need for two men, either from the selling field (other than insurance) or the executive group. Those interested telephone WAlnut 3220 for appointment.

Atlanta Paint Co. Is Moving To 25 Houston Street

After being located at 71 Walton street, N. W., for the past 15 years, L. R. Hunter, manager, announces the moving of his company, the Atlanta Paint Company, to No. 25 Houston street, N. E. The move, says Mr. Hunter, is made because the space they have occupied for so many years is now needed by the Fourth Service Command of the Army.

Mr. Hunter solicits the visits of his old patrons—and new ones—at their new place on Houston street, where they are assured of the same courteous and prompt service always accorded them. The Atlanta Paint Company is a subsidiary of Pratt & Lambert, Inc., of Buffalo, N. Y., an international organization with branches in all the principal cities. This concern manufactures a high-grade line of paints, varnishes and enamels, and its record for quality has been known for 100 years. There is genuine satisfaction in every can obtained bearing the name of Pratt & Lambert.

The Atlanta Paint Company is also distributors for National Gypsum Company's line of paint products, including Sunflex, as well as a general line of sundry items.

White Furniture And Storage Co. Plan for Patrons

In order to expand to meet the demands of his customers, A. C. White, head of the A. C. White Furniture, Transfer and Storage Company, has recently bought 65,000 square feet of uptown property, located on Trinity avenue, near Whitehall street.

This latest purchase is operated in addition to the three stores now in operation, located at 410-16 Edgewood avenue, 203 Georgia avenue, and 214 Trinity avenue, and with still another store to be added at 208 Whitehall street, to be opened about October 1.

Mr. White's success both in the furniture merchandise and transfer business he places largely upon the loyalty of his employes.

Some of the personnel of the White concern—some of whom have been with the company 15 years—include: A. T. Bull, Miss Mary J. Rutherford, Mrs. Mills, George Mills, F. P. Sills, J. A. Coot, C. H. Goodwin, Fred Wardlow, Virgil Gray and A. C. White Sr.

The transfer department co-operates with the storage in buying any good used furniture offered for sale by Atlantans. Also the stores buy new furniture, thus offering wide selections of new and used furniture to Atlanta's furniture shoppers. Due to the volume of furniture sales and purchases Mr. White's stores are able to offer merchandise at low prices.

Storage rates are nominal and Mr. White has on hand a large fleet of closed vans, giving prompt service in the movement of goods. Crating, packaging of material, is also a service rendered.

Mr. White gives interesting history about his life, beginning back

Industrial Review.

17 years ago when he was forced to retire from the life insurance business due to ill health. This was the second position from which he had to retire for reasons of health. Mr. White, wishing to occupy himself in some way, decided to experiment in the transfer business, so he bought a truck business from Dobbins Company, of Marietta, and operated in Marietta for several months. Soon realizing Atlanta was a better location, he moved his transport business to Atlanta, renting a place for a phone at Tyson's Barber Shop, corner of Boulevard and Forrest avenue. This was headquarters for approximately a year. Meanwhile, he began his storage business by storing goods in his own basement. Soon afterward he built a small warehouse in his back yard with material salvaged from the wreckage of old houses he had bought for this purpose. Before long, these facilities were not sufficient for his growing business, so Mr. White rented several buildings, one of which he later bought and it now houses the Edgewood branch of the company.

Mr. White says to Atlantans: Just remember when buying, selling, storing, crating, packing or moving of furniture call the A. C. White Company for prompt and safe service.

Lt. Roy Johnson Saved in Romania

Lt. Roy E. Johnson, of 150 Dodd avenue, S. W., is another "missing in action" flyer, who was evacuated when Romania capitulated to the Allies and now is safe.

Johnson

A navigator on a B-24 Liberator, Johnson was returned to his 15th Air Force base in Italy, when formations of escorted Flying Fortresses landed to pick up the prisoners of war and fly them to freedom in Italy.

The men reported that their treatment was not bad in their prison camps. Not required to work, they received "fair" food from Romanians who were "rather friendly." Medical treatment was furnished, and the men were allowed to send and receive mail and packages through the Red Cross. A prison paper was printed by hand, and a smuggled radio furnished news. "It was the waiting and the unpredictable future and the definite separation from home ties which depressed us," said the men.

79th, 134th in Action

WITH THE AMERICAN THIRD ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 24.—(AP) The 79th Infantry division and the 134th Infantry regiment are in action with the American Third Army, it was officially disclosed tonight.
